Home Rule Bill Given Approval

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The first constitutional amendment passed by both houses was approved by the Missouri Senate Thursday.

It will allow the people to vote on expanding the home rule powers of cities over 5,000. They could enact any ordinance not prohibited by their charters or by the legislature.

Sen. Richard M. Webster, R-Carthage, predicted it would cut down the number of local bills cluttering up the legislature by 25 per cent.

Before quitting work until Monday, the Senate effectively killed a proposed constitutional change that might have opened the way for a governorship race in 1972 between Democratic Gov. Warren E. Hearnes and Republican Atty. Gen. John C. Danforth.

Webster got the Senate to adopt, 15-10, a motion to table a move to take the bill away from the Budget Control Committee. It was put there by Webster and other opponents of the plan and had appeared to be dead, since the Senate never has taken a bill away from a committee in modern times.

But Webster said he wanted to bury the proposal "as far down in the ground as I can" to show the administration it should "quit messing around with legislative procedures and quit twisting our arms."

He said members of both parties had been subjected to pressure to pass the constitutional change.

Passed and sent back to the House with a Senate change was a bill to require restoration of land scattered by the mining of limestone, clay, sand or gravel to a level for agriculture or forestation.

It is a companion to one passed earlier requiring restoration of strip coal and barite mines and would be administered by the same Land Reclamation Commission.

Passed and sent to the governor were bills to:

Make insurance and other employee benefit payments exempt from state income taxation, the same as the federal law.

Give ham radio operators special automobile licenses for a $5 fee.

Let Missouri contract with other states for custody of prisoners.

Before quitting for the weekend, Sen. William J. Cason, D-Clinton, the majority leader, warned senators to come back next week ready to work right on through until the June 15 adjournment, except for Sunday, June 13.

Hoffa Relinquishes Control Over Union

WASHINGTON (AP) — Facing the possibility of several more years in prison, James R. Hoffa is retiring after 14 years as president of the Teamsters union, turning over leadership of the world's largest labor union to Frank E. Fitzsimmons.

"I will not be a candidate for office of general president because of my present legal difficulties," Hoffa announced Thursday from his prison cell in Lewisburg, Pa.

He endorsed Fitzsimmons, longtime friend and stand-in and Teamsters general vice president, to succeed him as president of the two-million-member union.

There have been reports Hoffa might win parole from his 13-year jury-tampering and loan-fraud sentences after stepping down from the Teamsters post. He was rejected for parole March 31 and has until June 30 to petition the U.S. Parole Board for a new hearing on the basis of new evidence.

The Justice Department confirmed a meeting Wednesday between Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell and Publisher William Loeb of the Manchester, N.H., Union-Leader, who has been active in attempts to free Hoffa.

The Justice Department said the possibility of a Hoffa parole after he relinquishes power wasn't discussed. A White House spokesman brushed aside a question Thursday of how the President would look on a Hoffa request for pardon and said any such plea would go before Justice first.

Fitzsimmons, who read to the Teamsters executive board Hoffa's message and endorsement, said he will enter the union's July 4 convention at Miami Beach with backing from all upper-echelon leaders.

Throughout his presidency, Hoffa clashed with Congress, federal courts and other labor organizations. In 1967, he went to jail on the jury-tampering and mail-fraud convictions and since has stuffed mattresses at the Lewisburg, Pa., penitentiary.

Fitzsimmons, 63, has ruled with a more relaxed rein than Hoffa and is reportedly preferred by many union leaders.

Unemployment, Wholesale Prices Are Both On Increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government reported today a rise in unemployment to match a nine-year high and another hike in wholesale prices, indicating trouble for President Nixon's hopes for an improving economy.

The nation's jobless rate moved back up to 6.2 per cent of the U.S. work force to equal last December's figure, and wholesale prices rose four-tenths of one per cent, largely because of higher steel and gasoline costs.

The jobless rise gave more political ammunition to Democrats, who blamed Nixon's economic policies.

"The return of the nationwide unemployment rate to the record high of last December is a shocking and dismaying comment on President Nixon's continuing failure to deal with the economy as a problem that affects individual Americans," said Democratic National Chairman Lawrence F. O'Brien.

Wholesale prices have risen at an annual rate of 4.3 per cent the past six months, highest for any six-month stretch since March of 1970, said the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Jobless rates rose especially for construction workers and sales workers and young women, and the number of long-term unemployed—27 weeks or more—climbed substantially, the Labor Department said.

The national jobless rate was up from 6.1 per cent in April, said the department's Bureau of Labor Statistics.

The actual number of jobless Americans dropped 300,000 to a total of 4.4 million, but because it usually declines more than that in May the bureau figured it as a rise of 130,000 on a seasonal basis.

The bureau also reported that average earnings of some 45 million rank and file workers—more than half the nation's work force—rose two cents an hour to $3.40 and increased $1.41 per week to $125.46.

The average weekly paycheck was up $7.06 for a 6 per cent gain over the past year. A 4.3 per cent rise in living costs over the same period reduced purchasing power $5.39 per week, leaving the average workers with a net gain of $1.67.

The report said the nation's total employment rose 500,000 in May to 78.7 million, but because it generally rises more in May the bureau figured it as a 265,000 rise on a seasonal basis.

The jobless rate for women 20 to 24 years old continued its sharp climb of recent months, rising from 10.3 per cent in April to 11.5 per cent in May—the highest in more than a decade, the bureau said.

In a racial breakdown, the bureau said the unemployment rate for Negroes rose from 10.0 to 10.5 per cent, highest in nearly eight years and the rate for white workers edged up from 5.6 to 5.7 per cent for the highest in nearly 10 years.

The jobless rate for full time workers rose from 5.5 to 5.8 per cent, the report said.

"The average duration of joblessness lengthened in May, primarily reflecting a sizeable increase in very long-term unemployment. The number of persons unemployed 27 or more weeks rose by 150,000 over the month to 580,000, seasonally adjusted, the highest level since May 1963," the bureau said.

The average length of unemployment for all the jobless increased from 10.8 weeks to 11.5 weeks, it said.

The jobless rate for all men rose 4.4 to 4.5 per cent and totalled 1.9 million.

The rate for women remained unchanged at 6 per cent at a total of 1.5 million. The rate for teen-agers edged up from 17.2 to 17.3 per cent at a total of 981,000, the bureau said.

The number of persons working part-time because they cannot find full time jobs totalled 2.5 million.

Interest Rate Hike Proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The head of the Federal National Mortgage Association says the interest-rate ceiling on government-backed mortgages should be raised if the upward pressure on interest rates continues.

"Unless there is a turnaround in interest rates, an increase in the ceiling is warranted to reduce the discount," association president Oakley Hunter said in an interview. The ceiling is now 7 per cent.

"The administration is watching the situation very carefully on a day-to-day basis," Hunter said. "They don't want to act precipitously."

Lenders sell their mortgages to the association, known as Fannie Mae, at a discount in order to get more money for even more lending.

Most of this discount, known as "points" in the housing industry, is usually absorbed by the builder or the seller of the house.

At Fannie Mae's last auction, the discount on mortgages bought by the association was at 92 per cent on 7 per cent Federal Housing Administration and Veterans Administration mortgages.

The Housing and Urban Development Department is charged with making the decision on the interest-rate ceiling.

The ceiling came down dramatically from a record 8½ per cent early this year as the Federal Reserve Board sharply expanded the money supply and brought down interest rates generally.

Fannie Mae, once a government-sponsored corporation, is now a private operation. Its main function is to serve as the lender of last resort in the home financing field, buying government-backed VA and FHA mortgages from lenders. It, in turn, reinvests the money to try to make a profit.

Hunter said builders are accustomed to absorbing a discount when Fannie Mae buys mortgages at about 96 per cent of the value. But 92 per cent is too low, he said, and cuts into the profit margin sharply.

The principal reason for the upward pressure on interest rates appears to follow from the expectation that loan charges have bottomed out and are starting to rise again, catching some mortgage bankers by surprise.

When interest rates bottomed out instead many mortgage bankers found themselves with mortgages without lenders. They have sought to unload them in recent weeks, creating a big demand for funds.

Senate Votes on Draft Bill

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate voted today a proposal by Sen. Mark O. Hatfield, R-Ore., to stop all draft calls on July 1.

It then headed toward a mid-afternoon vote on the proposal by Sen. Richard S. Schweiker, R-Pa., to limit draft extension to one year.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Amendments to hasten the Nixon administration's goal of an all-volunteer military force, by ending the draft or limiting extension to one year, came up for Senate votes today.

The amendment by Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., to stop all draft calls July 1 was given little chance before the vote.

A closer vote was predicted for the proposal by Sen. Richard S. Schweiker, R-Pa., to halve the two-year House-approved draft extension. This could bring a year earlier the White House goal of a volunteer army by mid-1973.

Meanwhile, Senate leaders worked toward an agreement for a June 18 vote on cutting off funds for the Vietnam war. The agreement, reportedly reached Thursday, would delay two weeks any effort to limit debate on the over-all draft-extension bill and its many amendments.

Under the reported time-limit agreement, the Senate would take up next week the McGovern-Hatfield amendment to cut off Indochina war funds after Dec. 31.

Republican sources reported some supporters of the McGovern-Hatfield measure are reluctant to back any debate cutoff before a vote on their amendment.

McGovern-Hatfield lost last year 55 to 39, and backers claim it has at least 40 votes this year—well above the 34 needed to block any debate cutoff.

Senate leaders had planned to move for a debate cutoff after the vote on the Schweiker amendment.

If the extension measure isn't passed, draft officials say, they could call some of the millions of men in a deferred status, including college students.

In related developments:

—The Foreign Relations Committee scheduled an afternoon meeting to decide whether to approve the McGovern-Hatfield amendment or any other proposal aimed at ending or limiting U.S. involvement in Southeast Asia.

Two Reasons

These two gaping holes in the ceiling of the hallway to Mayor Jerry Jones' office are probably the latest reasons why Sedalia needs a new city hall. Peeking through one of the holes is Smith-Cotton basketball star Chip Thompson, who created them Friday morning by accident. Along with other men Thompson was trying to patch up some old holes in the roof when he accidentally stepped through the ceiling. He didn't fall through the holes, thanks to a hard beam which broke his fall. Thompson laughed it off with, "It didn't hurt. . . just scared me, that's all."

Sedalia's Mental Health Center To Open In July

(Democrat-Capitol Service)

COLUMBIA — Dr. Widad Bazzoui, acting assistant superintendent of the Mid-Missouri Mental Health Center here said that two clinics in Sedalia and Marshall will be reopened in July if no further cuts are made in the Center's budget.

Bazzoui said that the Sedalia and Marshall clinics had been closed for June because of a 15 per cent reduction in the staff at the clinic and not because of the budget itself.

In an earlier report to The Democrat-Capitol, the Center's director, Dr. Maarten Nieuwenhuizen, said that the Missouri Senate had reduced the Governor's annual budget recommendation from $2.5 million to $2,370,000.

Earlier in the year, the organization had asked for a budget of $3.2 million, which Nieuwenhuizen said was a full-staff, maximum efficiency budget.

Even with the Sedalia clinic reopening in July, it will have to replace a part-time psychiatrist who resigned recently. He had been making the trips to Sedalia.

Bazzoui said there would be no difficulties in reopening the Sedalia facility if the Missouri House-Senate Conference Committee makes no further cuts in the $2,370,000 budget figure.

Bazzoui termed the Sedalia Mental Health Center as one of the largest in the state and described it as being "very important." Over 230 patients regularly use the services of the Sedalia center. The facility in Marshall also counsels over 100 patients a month.

The staff at the Mid-Missouri Mental Health Center here, because of the uncertainty of the budget and hints that some employees might not receive additional pay, has fallen from 302 in 1970 to 254 at the end of May this year.

Catholic Church Will Ordain Married Men

By GEORGE W. CORNELL

AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A new corps of married clergymen, the deacons, soon will be serving extensively in the Roman Catholic Church in this country.

After two years of training, about 50 of them are to be ordained in various dioceses by this fall, 30 of them in June. About 400 others are preparing for it. Most are married men.

Their entry into the Church's official ministry marks a dramatic break with its practice of more than a millenia, and sharpens questions about other possible changes ahead for the Catholic clergy.

"It is a very significant and historic step," says the Rev. William Philbin, of Washington, D.C., director of the Secretariat of the U.S. Bishops' Committee on the Permanent Diaconate.

It also has stirred new discussion of ordaining women and allowing priests to marry.

The new deacons to be ordained this summer, among 430 men now in training for the role at 13 centers across the country, will be able to carry out many of the functions of the priesthood.

By official ecclesiastical definition, they become clergymen, in major holy orders, authorized to baptize, preach, distribute Communion, officiate at weddings and funerals, conduct religious devotions and education programs and perform other pastoral duties.

Along with bishops and priests, they will share "in the official leadership of the Christian community," writes the Rev. Thomas E. Clarke, of Jesuit Woodstock College in New York.

However, unlike full priests, the new deacons won't be able to consecrate the bread and wine of the Eucharist (the Lord's Supper) or hear confessions.

"While they can perform various liturgical functions, much of their work is expected to be supplemental, such as in hospitals, chaplaincies and other service programs," Father Philbin said.

In most cases, it also will be part time, since most deacons will remain self-supporting in their regular secular jobs, although some full-time assignments are contemplated now and more in the future.

Heretofore, and for about 1,300 years, the diaconate in Catholicism has been a stage of ordination prior to entry into the full priesthood. But the new deacons are being ordained to be permanent, a practice in New Testament times and during Christianity's early centuries.

Though corn did not spread throughout Europe until the 16th Century, it had long been the principal food crop of the Mayas, Aztecs, Incas and other Indian tribes. Corn pollen taken from drill cores 200 feet below Mexico City was about 60,000 years old.

Casualties Admitted By Brass

SAIGON (AP) — High-ranking South Vietnamese field commanders today acknowledged heavy losses at the Cambodian town of Suoi and said they have switched to mobile tactics in cross-border operations.

One reason cited by a South Vietnamese general is the loss of backup U.S. ground forces. He indicated the South Vietnamese would continue to rely heavily on full U.S. air support for some time to come.

The South Vietnamese officers briefed newsmen on Cambodian operations but specified that their names could not be disclosed.

They said Saigon's Task Force 8, which retreated from Suoi last Monday, suffered 300 killed, wounded or missing, but some of its 74 missing have begun straggling back across the border. The force is no longer effective for combat, and it will take about a month to rebuild it, one general said.

Two other task forces numbering about 3,000 men have been diverted from another operation in Cambodia 60 miles away to protect the border south of Suoi and 80 miles north of Saigon.

One South Vietnamese general said he would not promise to destroy the three enemy divisions in that part of eastern Cambodia or their bases, but he would "reduce their potential and try to do the best to cut off their infiltration into South Vietnam."

Field commanders said the withdrawal in the past year of two U.S. divisions from the 3rd Military region, the 11 provinces around Saigon, had forced the South Vietnamese troops to provide their own highway security on the Vietnamese side of the border for their supply lines into Cambodia.

"The mission of 10 men is now reduced to five," said a South Vietnamese general. "I feel some difficulties."

While conceding serious losses at Suoi, the general claimed South Vietnamese troops and U.S. aircraft wiped out more than 1,000 enemy troops, the equivalent of a regiment. He said four North Vietnamese regiments had moved on Suoi and would have annihilated Task Force 8 if it had not pulled back.

Field commanders reported, meanwhile, that 63 Khmer Rouge, the Communist-led Cambodian troops, surrendered at a South Vietnamese base near the Cambodian town of Krek and handed over 46 weapons.

In other developments: The South Vietnamese claimed that 130 North Vietnamese were killed by South Vietnamese ground forces and allied air strikes around Fire Base 5, a mountain outpost near the juncture of the borders of South Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos. Eight South Vietnamese troops were killed and 10 wounded, headquarters said.

The North Vietnamese failed to show up today for the rendezvous at sea off the demilitarized zone to accept 13 disabled war prisoners. The Communists had agreed to accept 570 prisoners offered by the South Vietnamese, but then Saigon said only the 13 wanted to go home. Hanoi said Saigon's offer was a "sham" and its agreement to accept the prisoners was off.

The American troopship Upshur carried the POWs to the rendezvous area but after circling all morning turned back to Da Nang.

The Cambodian Command in Phnom Penh said three North Vietnamese-Viet Cong regiments appear to have pulled back to regroup.

Atty. Gen. Vern Miller sent a letter to all the county attorneys asking them to "immediately notify all race track operators within your county that no violations of the criminal code will be permitted."

Over 71 Motorists 'Punished'

Motorists in Sedalia paid the price of not displaying a city sticker Thursday when Sedalia police issued an estimated 71 citations.

According to police, the $10 tickets were given for failure to have a sticker or failure to display it. Police Chief William Miller said the sticker should be placed on the lower right hand side of the windshield.

One police officer said that most of the tickets were issued during daylight hours Wednesday.

Meanwhile, the long line of Sedalia residents returned to the city collector's office Friday. Again, as before the deadline, several persons were waiting on the sidewalk in front of city hall before the collector's office opened at 8:30 a.m.

Mrs. Opal Hugelmann, city collector, said that city stickers were selling at a brisk pace both Thursday and Friday morning. To date, around 7,400 city stickers have been sold to operators of automobiles out of a total of 9,000.

There have been 174 city stickers sold to owners of small engine vehicles, such as motor scooters and motorcycles, Mrs. Hugelmann said. On Thursday, Police Chief William Miller estimated there were 300 such vehicles in the city.

There were 1,300 city stickers sold to owners of trucks in Sedalia, Mrs. Hugelmann said.

Drug Charge Is Facing Physician

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The director of Johnson County, Kansas, health department, Dr. Bruce E. Hodges, is returning to Kansas City today to face six federal grand jury indictments for selling depressant or stimulant drugs, and for selling prescriptions for the drugs.

Reached in Los Angeles where he is taking graduate work, Dr. Hodges denied Thursday night he had ever sold drugs illegally. And he said he didn't know anything about the indictment. He said one of his duties in the county post was working in drug control with the county attorney and sheriff.

The indictments charge Dr. Hodges with making the sales to a government agent in February of this year.

The doctor has an office in Lenexa and also lives in that city. He has been in private practice since Jan. 1, 1964.

Glen S. Kelly, assistant U.S. district attorney, said all the alleged sales were made in Dr. Hodges' office. Judge Wesley E. Brown, who received the indictments, set bond for Dr. Hodges at $2,500.

Johnson County Commissioner Robert R. Davis, said he would now seek to have Dr. Hodges suspended as health director pending disposition of the case.

Another Free Ride For Mills

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., planned to take another free ride aboard a company-owned jet to Oklahoma today as he renewed his speaking campaign against President Nixon's revenue-sharing plan.

"I see nothing wrong with that," Mills said.

Mills, a powerful chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee and author of all major tax bills since World War II, has accepted free flights aboard company-owned airplanes to two other states in the past nine days.

A lobbyist for the nation's largest retail firm, Sears, Roebuck & Co., arranged one of the jet flights, which took Mills and his wife home to Arkansas after the speech.

Mills was scheduled to board a jet owned by Kerr-McGee Corp., in Washington today to fly to Oklahoma City to address the state legislature there. Kerr-McGee is a large oil company founded by the late Democratic Sen. Robert Kerr and based in Oklahoma City.

"People invite me to speak, then arrange transportation," Mills said. "In most cases, I don't even know whose plane it is."

Mills, being pushed, mostly in his home state, as a dark-horse contender for the Democratic presidential nomination, has been stumping the states to speak against the Nixon plan to pass out $5 billion in federal revenue to state and local governments to use as they see fit. The bill, key measure in the revenue-sharing plan, is pending in Mills' committee.

A land development firm in an Arkansas lake resort area outside Mills' district furnished a plane for a special flight Monday to Baton Rouge for a speech to the Louisiana Legislature.

A Sears, Roebuck spokesman confirmed his company carried Mills in a twin-engine jet from Washington to Springfield, Ill., May 26 to talk to the Illinois legislature, then flew him home to Arkansas.

Mills replied that he never accepts speaking fees, but he does expect his hosts to pay his expenses and provide his transportation.

Lobbyist John L. Wheeler, a Sears vice president who was a law school classmate of Mills, invited the chairman to fly with him to Illinois last week. Wheeler said he scheduled a meeting there to coincide with Mills' trip.

The land development firm of John A. Cooper Co. in Bella Vista, Ark., sent a twin-propeller plane on a special flight to pick up Mills at his home Monday, then flew him to Baton Rouge and back.

U.S. Drug Industry Talk Topic

A report on the pharmaceutical industry in America and its future trends was presented to Sedalia Kiwanians at their meeting Thursday noon at the Bothwell Hotel.

The speaker was Jim Buchanan, a representative of Abbott Laboratories. Buchanan said the American drug industry is able to outpace all other nations in the development of new drugs for three reasons: competitive stimulus, willingness to take financial risks, and the need to continually improve drugs.

While saying that some form of national health care for the U.S. is inevitable, Buchanan cautioned against changing the traditional doctor-patient relationship by turning medicine over to the "politicians." He predicted that national health care would be unpopular with the American people.

Buchanan was introduced by Cecil Owen, program chairman. The club endorsed a proposal now before the City Council to change the name of Centennial Park to Don S. Lamm Centennial Park. A letter of support for the Boys Club in their efforts to obtain a community center also was authorized by the club.

Birthday greetings were extended to Monty McQuitty, and singing was led by Abe Rosenthal, accompanied by Mrs. Lillian Maynard.

Six People Are Killed In Mishap

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — A suburban Wichita woman, her two small children and three teenagers were killed Thursday night when the car in which they were riding crashed into a Frisco freight train at a north-east Sedgewick County crossing.

Authorities said the crossing is guarded on the north side of the track by an automatic crossbar, but not on the south side from which the car approached.

The victims, identified by the Sedgewick County sheriff's office, include:

Mrs. Sally S. Barnaby, 25, of rural Wichita;

Her children, Tammy Lynn, 23 months, and Christina Sue, three;

Randall L. Wells, 17, Piedmont, Kan., a nephew;

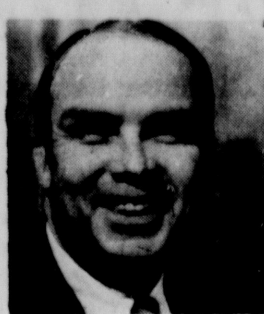

Franklin D. Bedigrew, 18, Toronto, Kan.;

Deborah K. Waits, 16, Rose Hill, Kan.

The car was carried about 75 yards along the track east of the point of impact. The bodies were strewn along the track for the last 25 yards.

The car struck the train about four cars back of the engine.

Investigators said skid marks indicated the driver apparently had applied brakes an undetermined distance from the point of impact, and the car swerved as it reached the train.

Mind Your Money

More Comment on Credit Cards

By PETER WEAVER

Q — I would like to lift a paragraph from your consumer report (column on credit card protection) and then comment on it:

"Now that it's much more difficult for you to be held accountable for any unauthorized charges, there is less need for special credit card notification or insurance."

You are publicizing the fact that the new $50 limitation (liability on unauthorized charges) is a license to steal. Thousands of new crooks will be born because of the fine work you are doing.

Protection companies offer many valuable services: (1) key tag registration, (2) change of address service and (3) valuable document registration. Credit Card Sentinel does this for $5 a year. — W.A.L., Credit Card Sentinel, Inc.

A — In the new law which protects consumers against unauthorized credit card charges, Congress intended to put more of the burden of guarding against credit card thefts on the card issuer, less on the consumer.

I said that credit card "protection" services were less important now because consumers were only liable for $50 on unauthorized charges, not the "open checkbook" that existed before. If a company does not advise a consumer of his rights and does not include a self-addressed card or envelope for notification of loss or theft, then the consumer is not liable for any payment, not even the $50.

Of course consumers should notify companies when a credit card is lost or stolen. It will eliminate errors and wasted time in billing, and it will help cut down overall credit costs for everybody.

Q — We have elected to comply with the recent amendment to Truth in Lending (credit card protection) in an effort to encourage card holders to notify us of the loss of their credit card so that we may, in turn, notify establishments honoring the credit card.

We are providing each card holder at the time his credit card is issued or reissued with a self-addressed (postage paid by addressee) post card to be mailed back to this company in the event of the loss or theft of the card.

It is not our intention to pursue our card holder for $50 every time there is an unauthorized use of the card. — S.B.F., Carte Blanche Corp.

A — Thanks for the information. It's interesting to note that, since the credit card protection law went into effect, more and more card issuers and establishments honoring the cards are tightening their security.

Several BankAmericard member bank issuers are now requiring card holders to have color pictures on the cards. A number of stores have electronic devices to check each card to see if it's on the "hot" list.

Q — What does "Class E" stamped on a cigar box mean? Are there several classes? What goes into cigars which are "predominantly natural tobacco with non-tobacco ingredients?" — W.D.P., Morris Plains, N.J.

A — The Internal Revenue Service requires manufacturers to put a stamp with an alphabetical rating system on cigar boxes. The cheapest are rated "Class A" and are usually small cigars retailing for less than three cents each. B stamps indicate a retail price of four cents or less, C indicates less than six cents, D less than eight cents, E less than 15 cents, F less than 20 cents, and the top rating, Class G, means the cigar sells for more than 20 cents.

Non-tobacco ingredients are found in reprocessed "sheet tobacco" used in cheaper cigars. Paper is used in sheet tobacco to give it resiliency, but the Federal Trade Commission has received complaints that other items such as glass, wool, ceramics, silicate fiber and diatomaceous earths are going into cigars. The FTC has asked manufacturers to disclose all ingredients used.

Once-Powerful Railroad Used Strength To Rule

By JOHN CUNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Back at the turn of the century when there were no trucks and super-highways and aircraft, and the barge system was not so highly developed as it is today, the railroads had a practical transportation monopoly.

The world has an ominous connotation, and as most schoolboys know, the railroads did much to give it that quality.

The hoarse, hollow whistle of the train in the night mourns its way gently through American folklore. But to those in the way, it was a raucous blast that meant defiance, arrogance.

By admission of a prominent spokesman now pleading the industry's case before Congress, "They were greedy and tough and they ran all over everyone." They got their own way through power.

Today they are broke. The banks, which respect power and never its absence, are reluctant to lend the money at prime rates. And they claim they are being suffocated under a tonnage of government regulations that favor competitors.

Still, though beaten and brought pleading to their knees — four lines are bankrupt, the largest included, and 11 to 14 are on the verge — the industry is likely to win its way again, this time through its very weakness.

This is how power-through-weakness works:

The country cannot survive without railroads. They move 41 per cent of its freight, or some 780 billion ton miles. Close them down, as in a strike, and quickly a major segment of other industries begins to close also.

The railroads are impoverished. They are dispirited. Their equipment and roadbeds are in disrepair. Though essential to the nation's survival, their own survival is not assured.

This presents two solutions: One, relaxation of restrictive regulations, combined with subsidies and government-guaranteed loans from the reluctant banks; two, government takeover.

Takeover! As terrible a word as monopoly. Governments in other democratic nations operate their railroads, although in the red. But big government has been feared by Americans almost as much as big business.

But that really is not the problem. It's something else altogether; it involves money, as neatly laid on the line by the distinguished railroad spokesman.

"Nationalization would be the worst solution by far. To start with, the cost would be immense, because in this country the government can't just take something away from its owners.

"It must pay for it—usually at full market value. Takeover of the entire railroad investment would mean a cost to taxpayers of anywhere from $27 billion up to $60 billion or even more."

The words, including the reference to the earlier greed of the railroads, are those of George Smathers, former U.S. senator from Florida and now general counsel for ASTRO, an acronym for "America's Sound Transportation Review Organization."

What do the railroads want? In summary: less regulation, equal treatment with other modes of transportation, and money.

To many people this sounds like an old, old story. An industry on top tries to dictate, even to government. Defeated, it then argues that free enterprise means government aid to help mismanaged or old-fashioned or unneeded industries.

The railroads are now presenting a version of that argument. Some lines have been terribly mismanaged, and the concepts of others are myopic. But there is no doubt that they are essential. And there is growing evidence that they have an authentic claimant.

At any rate, their case, elaborately and skillfully prepared, can no more be ignored today than the whistle in the night.

Study Health Care Tour

WASHINGTON (AP) — In the spirit of know thy rival, organized medicine is lavishing critical attention on Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's cross-country travels in behalf of his health-care reform plan.

The current issue of the American Medical Association's weekly newspaper devotes three lengthy stories, three pictures, and most of its letters to the sojourn of the Massachusetts Democrat.

According to one of the stories, an AMA team followed Kennedy around the country last month as he held 10 field hearings on "The Health-Care Crisis in America."

The team used "complete tapes of previous hearings, eyewitness reports of the types of questions asked, and press packets" to arm local AMA leaders for their appearances before Kennedy's health subcommittee, the story said.

"This is just one of the many valuable services offered by the AMA staff which so seldom come to the attention of the general membership," Dr. Marvin E. Johnson, president of the Colorado Medical Society, wrote in a letter published in the American Medical News.

Kennedy is principal sponsor of labor-supported legislation to nationalize health care. A competing AMA plan calls for tax credits and direct government subsidies toward purchase of private health insurance plans by all Americans.

The AMA newspaper told its 500,000 readers a major purpose of Kennedy's hearings was political self-promotion.

approvingly quotes speculation that "the subcommittee tour was in part a testing of the temperature of political waters for Sen. Kennedy."

"Physicians are skeptical of the senator's motives" said the headline on another story.

"His appearance in Denver seemed more a rest of personal appeal," the story said.

At Los Angeles, the local medical society boycotted the hearings on grounds Kennedy was barnstorming in advance of the 1972 presidential election.

Several of the physicians' letters to the newspaper complained the 89-per-cent increase in congressmen's salaries between 1960 and 1969—from $22,500 a year to $42,500—is never mentioned when politicians talk about the ballooning costs of health care.

But one letter writer, Dr. Chester J. Herman of Bethesda, Md., criticized the newspaper's coverage of Kennedy's hearings for alleged "innuendo, attribution of motives, and mud-slinging."

Herman condemned the AMA for failing to hold its own hearings on "the current nonsystem of health care in this country."

Will Recommend Prosecuting Firm

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) in Kansas City will recommend that the Hercules Power Company, prime contractor at the Sunflower-Armory Ammunition plant in Johnson County, Kansas, be prosecuted for allegedly polluting Kill Creek in April of this year.

Robert Markey, chief enforcement officer of the Kansas City regional EPA office, said Thursday that Washington officials would be asked to prosecute Sunflower plant operators for "willfully discharging refuse into a tributary of a navigable river."

More than 3,000 fish along a two mile stretch of the creek were killed when the company discharged toxic ammonia into the stream, according to an EPA report.

Markey said it was possible Hercules could be fined up to $2,500 for every day the ammonia spilled into the creek, April 19 to April 28.

Premature Political Fever Hits the Nation

By CARL T. ROWAN

WASHINGTON — It seems to be some kind of spring madness — all this presidential politicking more than a year before the 1972 national conventions.

Rowan

But it has to be perfectly proper when you realize that wherever Americans gather socially these days the conversation inevitably drifts to the 1972 elections, and not to the drug problem, the woes of the cities, racial conflict, or Vietnam.

It is as though people have a feeling, often subconscious, that the solution to all these problems is to get the right man in the White House.

That is a very naive assumption, for the most that a President can do is steer the ship of state and perhaps inspire the crew. But it takes a lot of other people to clean off the barnacles, arrange the games that keep the passengers civil if not happy, or batten down the hatches when the ship of state hits stormy weather.

The nation's premature preoccupation with presidential politics suggests (and the polls confirm) that millions of Americans have misgivings about the direction in which President Nixon is steering this once-magnificent ship which has bounced off a few shoals lately and sprung some bad leaks.

And they clearly judge the present skipper a failure when it comes to inspiring the crew.

But they look among the contenders for the helm and see so little which is exciting or reassuring that an awful lot of the passengers are ready to take to the lifeboats.

Consternation, befuddlement, and cynicism are the key words for anyone watching the Democratic contenders.

The polls show Muskie defeating Nixon by a substantial margin, which one might think would make him the odds-on favorite among Democrats who are expected to go to their convention asking one critical question: "Who can beat Nixon?"

Yet, the polls also show that Democrats do not prefer Muskie as the candidate. They want Sen. Edward M. Kennedy.

That is why waves of cynicism lash the ship of state and its passengers when they see such clever old political pirates as Frank Mankiewicz, Pierre Salinger, and Myer Feldman hoisting the flag of Sen. George McGovern (D-S.D.).

Mankiewicz, Salinger, and Feldman are devout Kennedy-clan tacticians. Their reputations for political savvy are such that not even the passengers in steerage are so naïvely isolated as to believe that they think McGovern will win the nomination, let alone the election.

McGovern is a first-rate guy with a woefully small political base who is regarded by powers in his party as being too much a one-issue (Vietnam) man and too stridently liberal to win that critical bloc of middle-road voters.

So, whether McGovern believes it or not, most Democrats believe that the old Kennedy stalwarts are embracing him as a stop-Muskie factor which will make the primaries inconclusive and open the door for an emotional "draft" of Ted Kennedy at the convention.

Kennedy people assume, correctly, that it would be folly for Kennedy to become a candidate now. The Kennedy mystique, the glamor of the name, could be seriously diminished if the young senator got involved in the primary battles and made himself an early target for Republican sniping regarding Kennedy's behavior after the Chappaquiddick tragedy.

Despite Kennedy's popularity in the polls, a lot of Democrats are expressing doubt that he is "qualified" to be President in terms of training, achievement and intellect.

Nevertheless, there are growing suspicions that the party eventually will choose between Kennedy and Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey for the nomination.

On turning 60, Humphrey said what almost everyone assumed months ago. He has the sails up testing the winds and he is licking his chops at the prospect of another race against Nixon. But a lot of Democrats are saying aloud that they don't view this prospect with the same glee.

Some of these Democrats express deep respect for Humphrey personally, but they feel that Humphrey cannot win because he remains unacceptable to young voters.

At the dinner parties, this assertion always provokes heated discussions as to whether the Democrats can unite behind Humphrey, Kennedy, or Muskie in 1972. The consensus usually is that there are serious reasons to doubt that the party will be able to unite behind anyone.

Democrats are largely resigned to a predicament in which they must rely more on Nixon's failures and Nixon's unpopularity than on the excitement and promise of their candidate. Unless, by starting the political battles early, they induce some new gallant knight to ride out of the ranks.

In the meantime, Nixon's backers hope that the Democrats maim each other fatally. And the Democrats hope that Nixon clings stubbornly to policies, which leave millions out of work, out of cash, and out of the mood to give him another term.

Voting Amendment Outlook Brighter

After months of foot-dragging, it looks like the Missouri General Assembly might ratify a federal constitutional amendment to lower the voting age to 18.

If this comes to pass, it will be due in no small measure to the efforts of Sen. Ike Skelton of the 28th District, who has consistently pushed for ratification of the amendment.

Missouri may then be the 30th or 31st state to ratify the measure, of a total of 38 required to amend the U.S. Constitution. Presently 18-year-olds may vote only for President; the amendment would extend this to all elections.

Skelton's bill was perfected

Wednesday by an encouraging 25 to 8 margin after the Senate set back an identical House joint resolution on a rules question. Had not Skelton's bill been waiting in the wings, ratification of the amendment would have been out of the question for this session, which ends June 15.

Final passage may come in the Senate early next week, after which the bill will return to the House, where no trouble is expected. From there it goes to the governor for signing into law.

We favor giving 18-year-olds full voting privileges, and applaud the efforts of our state senator in bringing this important legislation to a vote.

New Style License

If Governor Hearnes signs a recently-passed House bill, Missourians will get new driver's licenses next year bearing their color photographs.

The bill was sponsored by Rep. Joe Rains of Sedalia, who says it will save the state money by eliminating liquor control ID cards. (Which raises the interesting question about what you do with someone who wants to drink but doesn't own a car.)

Cost of the new driver's license will go up to $3 for three years, compared to the current $2 charge.

An added benefit of the card is that it would pump an additional $500,000 a year into the state treasury, after the 32-cent production cost is subtracted.

If nothing else, the new laminated driver's licenses will be more colorful than the current version, which strikes us as singularly dull in appearance.

"WE WANT TO STAY HERE AND GET INTO THE BLACK MARKET."

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — The other Democratic presidential hopefuls are stewing over Sen. Ted Kennedy. For all his statements that he won't seek the presidency in 1972, they aren't fully convinced.

Not only has Kennedy passed Sen. Ed Muskie as the first choice of Democratic regulars for the nomination, but Kennedy loyalists have quietly moved into key positions on the campaign staffs of the other aspirants.

Muskie's national political director, Jack English, came out of the Kennedy camp. Such Kennedy veterans as Mike Feldman, Frank Mankiewicz and Pierre Salinger are virtually taking over the campaign of Sen. George McGovern. And ex-Kennedy aides have infiltrated the campaign organizations of just about every other likely candidate.

This puts Kennedy in a unique position to manipulate the Democratic convention in case of a deadlock. The scrambling of the other contenders, because of their sheer number, could produce a stand-off. In this event, Kennedy would have key men on each staff to prod the other candidate on to the Kennedy bandwagon.

We have concluded after some painstaking political probing that Kennedy didn't plant his men on the other staffs as a deliberate Machiavellian move. He told his loyalists that he wouldn't run in 1972 and freed them to give their best service to the candidates of their choice.

Such honorable men as Feldman and Mankiewicz, for instance, have pledged to stick with McGovern as long as he feels he has any chance for the nomination.

But the scattered Kennedy camp followers, noting Ted's improved prospects, are looking for a change in signals. The possibility is increasing that they may be asked to hold themselves in readiness for a draft-Kennedy effort in case of a Democratic deadlock in 1972.

The new signal, if it comes, will be a backroom nod from Steve Smith, the Kennedy brother-in-law who is now quarterbacking the clan.

Merry-Go-Round

Strategic Spots For Kennedy Men

From intelligence sources in Cairo and Tel Aviv, my associate Joe Spear has collected these items:

— Egypt's recent overtures to the U.S., intelligence sources now believe, were part of President Sadat's strategy to consolidate his power. He threw out his rivals, most of them identified with pro-Soviet policies, and simultaneously held out an olive branch to the West. This brought Soviet President Podgorny hurrying to Cairo to repair Soviet-Egyptian relations. Sadat obligingly stiffened his attitude toward the West and delivered a tough note to the U.S. representative in Cairo, Donald Bergus, declaring that U.S. arms to Israel implicate the U.S. in the occupation of Arab territory. The pleased Podgorny reaffirmed Soviet support of Egypt, thus indirectly endorsing Sadat and strengthening his hold on the government.

— The Egyptian army has doubled its strength since its disastrous 1967 defeat. Its arsenals not only contain the latest Soviet armaments but its troops have been trained to operate this sophisticated equipment. Soviet shipments are still arriving, largely by airlift at the Cairo west airport. The Soviet fleet also has access to Egyptian harbors and anchorages. A naval air squadron, based near Cairo, serves the Soviet fleet in the Mediterranean and Red seas. An estimated 15,000 Soviet advisers and technicians are now stationed in Egypt, including more than 4,000 missile experts and 200 pilots. Is the Egyptian army, therefore, now a match for the Israeli Army? A top Israeli intelligence expert told Joe Spear: "We know the Egyptians can operate their new equipment. But can they extract the optimum performance from it? Can they integrate it? Can they hit the right targets at the right time? We believe this is where they are lacking."

— We were the first to report that Egypt is training an amphibious force for an assault across the Suez Canal. Spear writes from Cairo, however, that we didn't tell the whole story. Actually, the entire Egyptian army is getting amphibious training. One unit after another is put through the paces at mockup sites and on a lake in the desert south of Cairo. They also train on the canal itself, practicing their crossings from the Egyptian side to an island. The Soviets, meanwhile, are shipping in motorized rafts.

— The Israelis don't trust Sadat, refer to his peace proposal as a "paper peace." A high Israeli official told Spear: "We want peace, but we aren't moving until we can be sure the peace is worth the paper it is written on. We know Sadat. He was always the bombastic one. He was always the one for intrigue. So why has he now suddenly changed his tune? And why are we to trust him?" Spear asked the official whether there was anyone else in the Egyptian hierarchy the Israelis would rather deal with. The answer "No."

Last Sunday the Sedalia Jaycees held their annual Memorial Day races at the Fairgrounds. An added attraction of the race was a demolition derby.

June 4, 2550

Subj: Archaeological dig,
Fairgrounds site 3A.

Excavations are continuing in the general vicinity of what is believed to have been the fairgrounds of the late 20th century Central Missouri culture.

We have reached what we think is our first break in trying to piece together a general picture of the Memorial Day rite of the Sedalian culture.

Up to now, as you know, we have been puzzled by the large number of relics of the late Auto Age unearthed beneath the track of the fairgrounds. We were equally at a loss to explain the high degree of damage done to each of the vehicles.

Further complicating the picture was the discovery of a great many human bones in the vicinity of the grandstand. At first we surmised that they were the victims of some sort of sacrificial ceremony, but now Professor Hartley-Tweed has put forth another intriguing theory.

It is Hartley-Tweed's contention that the vehicles were not accidentally damaged, but rather intentionally so. Several of the rusted remains show evidence of having been struck not only in the front, but in the rear as well as the side in several instances. It is unreasonable to assume that such damage could have been accidentally inflicted.

We are now prepared to put forth the theory that the vehicles were intentionally destroyed in some form of automotive rite connected with the Sedalians' observance of Memorial Day. They appear to have been driven into one another in a frenzied exhibition to satisfy the jaded appetites of the spectators.

Professor Hartley-Tweed has made what I consider to be a brilliant supposition at this point, connecting the destruction of the vehicles to the human remains found in the grandstands.

It is his belief that many of the spectators actually died during the exhibition from carbon monoxide fumes, which are known to have been one of the dangers of the Auto Age. There is no doubt that a heavy concentration of such gases would have been released as the many vehicles collided.

The excavation of various layers of the area seems to indicate that several such exhibitions took place at the Fairgrounds over a period of years. We have equally detected separate levels of human bones in the grandstand area.

The answer to the question of why the Sedalians would continue, year after year, to return to participate in the suicidal rite must be left for our psychiatric branch to answer.

Is nothing sacred anymore? Now I read where my old branch of the service, the Navy, has done away with bell-bottoms in the sailor's working uniform, and is considering the same thing for the dress uniform.

Aside from the value of bell-bottoms in terms of Navy tradition — stretching all the way back to John Paul Jones — there is a practical angle to the uniform. I was taught at Navy OCS that bell-bottoms could be your best friend when abandoning ship. They catch air on the way down, and thus serve as a temporary life preserver.

Officers, with regular trousers, presumably went straight to Davy Jones' locker.

'Mind Drugs' Cause Dangerous Illusion

Fifth in Series
By ALTON BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor

To cope intelligently with the problems of drugs, parents need to know more about the appeal they have for young people. Here is how, in one survey, college students described their reactions to mind drugs.

"I could lose all my worries and imagine many things..."

"The mind is magnificently delighted by very simple situations or memories..."

Drugs "are our only means of feeling love (in the general, perhaps Christian sense) in this debacle of self-destruction. It is a return to Eden."

"I have stopped taking drugs ... It became all too easy to 'groove' on something... without ever coming to terms with real problems, without ever really thinking. The borders of illusion and reality became hazy..."

"I consider it now a part of the growing up process. It was an answer. It no longer is. I am still overwhelmed by the madness that is my country, but I must find another way of coming to terms with it."

For some users, "it is a way of hitting back at parents, to shock them, loosen them up a bit," says a West Coast college student. "Taking drugs marks an external rejection of middle class values and society in general."

A psychiatrist agrees that for some young people, including high schoolers, "it is fun to see their parents get put on. With drugs, they have something with which to get their parents enraged and incensed. The kids can send their parents into spasms. Taking drugs is one way of tweaking the old man's nose."

Many users of pot or other drugs simply find them enjoyable, as others do with alcohol. For some, it is a way of turning off emotional hurts, or for making up for feelings of inadequacy in school or at home. Some youngsters have low self-esteem and inability to establish close relationships, and adopt the attitude, "Why should I care if I hurt myself," says Jeanne Cherbenau, who directs a drug education and treatment program out of the YMCA in San Diego, Calif.

Marijuana, LSA, and other drugs, users say, also can offer escape from boredom, the complaint "there is nothing to do," even in the midst of plenty and affluence, or perhaps because of boredom with that affluence. "The world seems dull lots of times; we're overstimulated," a student remarks.

Dr. Mitchell Balter of the National Institute of Mental Health estimates that about one-third of those who use drugs experiment with them for kicks, another third out of curiosity, and one-third because they seek or hope for insights into themselves, or be or to feel more creative.

"Many young people feel that options in life are not open to them. Drugs represent a kind of withdrawal from society, which is too impersonal to them," says Dr. Leonard S. Zegans, Yale University psychiatrist.

"Drugs represent a breakdown in or withdrawal from society's competitive emphasis. You just can't compete in the drug state. They don't want to get into the dominance game that marks our society. They would rather get pleasures in ways in which they don't have to compete against certain values."

And, says Dr. Charles Winick of the American Social Health Association, "a young man who may face the possibility of having his head blown off in Vietnam is hardly likely to be dissuaded from drug use by being told he will 'go out of his head' by taking hallucinogens."

"The 'now' generation does not want to delay its gratification, especially since it has little confidence in its ability to change the world in the future," Dr. Winick adds.

The appeal of LSD, say various users, is that it brings a much more heightened if distorted perception, one that promises deeper insights into the inner world of feeling and consciousness. Some call it "instant paradise" or "instant analysis" of one's self. Some users say they often feel more creative — even though they may create nothing or fail to paint or play music better than when not under the drug's influence.

Alimony Is Paid To Divorced Man

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jacqueline Ward, a singer and voice coach, earns $5,700 a month more than her husband so Superior Court, before approving the couple's divorce, ordered her to pay David Ward $1,602 monthly alimony.

Ward's attorney successfully argued Wednesday that Mrs. Ward, 36, should help support two children who will be cared for by her husband. The payments should be made in the form of alimony, the lawyer said, because alimony is a federal income tax deduction and child support payments are not.

The wife will have custody of the couple's two other children. Ward, 43, a musical arranger, earns $1,157 a month, the court was told, whereas Mrs. Ward makes $6,913 monthly. The couple was married 16 years.

Elgin Baylor Mentioned

Mullaney Fired From Laker Post

LOS ANGELES (AP) — There was widespread speculation today that veteran forward Elgin Baylor of the Los Angeles Lakers would be named coach of the National Basketball Association team after Joe Mullaney was fired.

The Lakers, with a lengthy history as a bridesmaid in NBA championship playoffs but never a bride, announced Thursday Mullaney was being "removed" and offered him an executive position.

Mullaney, in a statement released through the club, said he "reluctantly declined" the offer to become an executive vice president as head of scouting. He said he had "tendered my formal resignation to the club."

General manager Fred Schaus said he hoped to name a new coach shortly and the name of Baylor, the often injured 6-foot-5 star, began popping up. The club refused comment.

Baylor has had a series of knee and groin injuries which have stalked him in recent years. Then, last Dec. 2, the 36-year-old former Seattle University All-American underwent surgery for a torn Achilles tendon. He said the University of Washington has contacted him concerning the head coaching post, now vacant there, but

Joe Mullaney Loses Job

Baylor has refused comment on his future plans.

The Lakers were successful under Mullaney, though injuries prevented them this past season of making much headway in the NBA playoffs. The previous year, Mullaney's first in the NBA, Los Angeles extended New York to seven games before losing the title.

Toward Junior Olympics

Preliminary Meet Saturday

Last year nearly 1,000 area youths took part in the Amateur Athletic Union's Junior Olympic Preliminary Track and Field qualifications at Jennie Jaynes Stadium.

This year meet director Paul Klover has received nearly one-third more entry forms for Saturday's competition.

The preliminary meet is the first step for boys and girls toward the national Junior Olympics.

This year's meet is again being sponsored by the S-M Sporting Goods Co.

There are five different divisions — nine and under, 10 and 11, 12 and 13, 14 and 15, as well as 16 and 17-year-olds groups. May 1, 1971 is the date for determining the age division.

Participants may enter three track and field events.

Winners of the first three places in all divisions of the preliminary meet must qualify to compete for the Missouri State Championships, in turn to qualify for the Missouri Valley District Championships.

The Missouri State Championship will be held at Public School Stadium in Carthage on June 12.

In the preliminary and Missouri state championships, ribbons will be awarded in individual events for the first five finishers. A gold shoe will be given to the most outstanding athlete in each division for boys and girls, who achieve the most points.

Gary Pepin, head track and cross country coach at Smith-Cotton High School, will be in charge of the track events.

Larry York, assistant track and assistant football coach at Smith-Cotton is in charge of the field events. Charles Richards, Moberly, will assist York in the triple jump and the long jump.

Cecil Young, Knob Noster, will be the starter; Keith Anderson, Sedalia, will be the recorder.

Ken Holtzman Hurls No-Hitter

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Ken Holtzman's strong left arm and some cooperative Cincinnati Astroturf have combined to produce the 1971 baseball season's first no-hitter.

Holtzman, the lanky Chicago left-hander, spun a 1-0 classic at the Reds to highlight the abbreviated Thursday night baseball action. In the only other games played, St. Louis trimmed Pittsburgh 7-1 and Atlanta downed Houston 5-2 in the National League and Boston edged New York 3-2 in American.

But the night belonged to Holtzman, who pitched the second no-hitter of his career, overcoming some early wildness and retiring the last 11 Reds in order. He struck out six, including Tommy Helms and Lee May for the final two outs in the ninth inning. The only Cincinnati runners came on four walks.

The Reds tried everything to get a hit off Holtzman and even went to the extreme of having slugger Johnny Bench lay down a leadoff bunt in the seventh inning. It was, according to Holtzman, his closest call.

"At first, I thought Bench had a hit," the 25-year-old pitcher said. "There was no way I could have thrown Bench out if the ball remained fair."

Holtzman rushed off the mound, across the Astroturf-covered infield and towards the ball.

"When I got over there, I saw the ball was spinning and I knew it would roll foul," the pitcher said. The ball spun off the artificial turf into foul territory and then Bench fled out.

That was the Reds' best chance for a hit. It seemed like such a good idea that Buddy Bradford, who drew two of the four walks off Holtzman, tried bunting in the eighth. But he ran into the ball and was declared out.

Holtzman had control problems in the early innings and got into his toughest jam in the third when Bradford walked and moved up on a wild pitch. He advanced to third on an infield out and then was stranded as Gary Nolan tapped in front of the plate and Hal McRae fled out.

In the top of the third, Holtzman scored the game's only run. He reached on Tony Perez's throwing error, moved up on an infield out and scored on Glenn Beckert's single.

Holtzman also pitched a no-hitter on Aug. 19, 1969 against Atlanta and said after Thursday's classic he felt much the same way he had after his first one—"A little in shock and awfully tired. I let it all out in the last inning."

Holtzman threw a total of 108 pitches and became the first Cub pitcher in history to hurl more than one no-hitter.

Elsewhere, Hank Aaron ripped a two-run pinch double to break a tie in the fourth inning and Atlanta topped Houston as Pat Jarvis halted a personal two-season 11-game losing streak.

Jarvis worked six scoreless innings in relief and Aaron, out because of an ailing knee, delivered his clutch pinch hit in the fourth inning as the Braves battled from behind.

Steve Carlton became the National League's first 10-game winner, pitching St. Louis past Pittsburgh. He also contributed a two-run double to the Cardinals' attack and ex-Pirate Matty Alou ripped his first homer and a pair of singles to drive in three runs for the Cards.

Boston ended its five-game losing streak and moved back into first place in the American League East by edging New York.

Pitcher Ray Culp's ninth-inning single drove in the deciding run for the Red Sox, and reliever Bob Bolin stamped out a ninth-inning Yankee rally. Reggie Smith homered for Boston and Thurman Munson connected for New York.

Carlton Wins 10th

Cardinals Break Away From Losing Streak

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Steve Carlton won his 10th game of the season and helped his cause with a two-run double as the St. Louis Cardinals defeated Pittsburgh 7-1 Thursday night, halting the Pirates' five-game winning streak.

Matty Alou, a former Pirate, hit his first homer of the season and added two singles, driving in three runs.

Carlton, 10-2, has won four straight games. He was in early trouble as the Pirates got four of their seven hits in the first three innings and scored a run. But he breezed through the next 13 batters until Jose Pagan singled in the eighth.

The Cardinals, with the victory, moved 1½ games in front of the Pirates, tied for second place with the idle New York Mets.

Joe Hague and Julian Javier each had run-scoring singles in the fourth for the Cards. Alou drove in a run in the fifth with a single after Lou Brock doubled.

Carlton's double in the sixth came after Jose Cardena singled and moved to third on two infield outs. Relief pitcher Nelson Briles gave Ted Sizemore an intentional walk but Carlton foiled the strategy.

Canonero Eyes Triple Crown

NEW YORK (AP) — Canonero II knows where the Belmont winner's circle is. Now all he has to do is get there Saturday and racing will have its ninth Triple Crown champion.

Trainer Juan Arias schooled Canonero II in the paddock Thursday and then led him to the winner's circle in front of the stands before the fifth race. He followed the same procedure before the colt won the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness.

To win the Belmont Stakes and become the first to win the Derby, Preakness and Belmont since Citation in 1948, Canonero II will have to beat at least 10 other 3-year-olds. The most any of the eight Triple Crown champions faced in winning the Belmont was seven, by Citation.

Among those expected to oppose Canonero II, owned by Venezuelan Pedro Baptista, were four colts he already has beaten—Frank J. Caldwell's Jim French, second in the Derby and third in the Preakness; William A. Levin's Bold Reason, third in the Derby and fifth in the Preakness; Pastoral Stable's Twist The Axe, 10th in the Derby, and J.M. Davis' Royal JD, seventh in the Preakness.

Other probabilities were Mrs.

Ethel D. Jacobs' Epic Journey, Tartan Stable's Highbinder, Anthony Imbisi's Purse Finder, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Linger's Salem, Neil Hellman's Good Behavior and Peter Kissel's Pass Catcher.

Royal JD was entered Thursday. The others were expected to be entered today.

Good Behavior, the triple stakes winner who missed the Derby and Preakness, and Jim French will run as a John Campo-trained entry. Good Behavior was a supplemental nominee for $5,000.

Eleven starters would give the 103rd running of the 1½-mile Belmont a gross purse of $160,350, with $96,210 to the winner.

Post time for the race is about 5:35 p.m., EDT. Television coverage will be from 5-6 p.m. and radio coverage from 5:25-5:45 p.m., both by CBS.

Arias was in high spirits after Canonero II galloped 1½ miles Thursday morning under 135-pound exercise boy Earl Whye, who had all he could do to keep the Kentucky-bred colt in check.

Arias said Canonero II, who races in the name of Edgar Calbett, Baptista's son-in-law, is coming up to the race in good shape. "There is no question about the fact that he is in fine health," Arias said.

Passed Ball Gives TNB 4-3 Victory

Keith Crowder scored an unearned run on a passed ball by catcher Mark Greene in the top of the sixth inning to give Third National Bank a 4-3 victory over VFW in Senior Babe Ruth League Action, Thursday night at Liberty Park Stadium.

Crowder scored on a pitch by Mike Arnold that got past Greene for the winning tally.

Mark Jones struck out 13 batters in gaining his first win of the season against no defeats for Third National Bank. Jones allowed only two hits.

Arnold was tagged with the loss; his record is now 1-1 for the campaign.

The game was a make up contest from a rainout, originally scheduled for Monday night.

Philadelphia Prep Sports Programs To Be Ended

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The superintendent of Philadelphia's schools says the system's varsity sports program will be eliminated because of money problems. It has produced such stars as basketball's Wilt Chamberlain and football's Herb Adderly.

Included in the cuts to take effect with the start of the 1971-1972 school year are all high school extracurricular activities—drama, debate, music and intramural sports.

Supt. Mark Shedd said Thursday that 2,000 jobs will be eliminated, for an annual saving of $20 million. He said the system faces a $100 million deficit for the fiscal year starting July 1.

He said the school board also plans to prohibit community use of 166 school buildings—such as for after hours adult programs—in the effort to effect savings. He also said the board is considering cuts in "every single program not mandated by state law."

School officials estimated that the abandonment of varsity sports and intramural athletics alone would affect 100,000 of the 284,000 children in the Philadelphia school system.

Stanley W. Pfeiffer, director of physical and health education called the decision a tragic move.

"Our experience has been that sports has been one of the heaviest contributory factors toward preventing dropouts," he said.

Pfeiffer said it was "just tragic for youngsters who are going to be deprived of going to college through athletic scholarships."

Should Return SFCC Cage Camp Forms

State Fair Community College's first session of this year's basketball camp will begin Monday, 9:30 a.m., in the agriculture building on the Missouri State Fairgrounds.

Bill Barton, head basketball coach at SFCC and director of the camp, would like to have the registration forms of all those wishing to attend the first session back as soon as possible.

Those wishing to attend the opening session, but who have not returned the forms, may do so Monday morning at 9 a.m. at the agriculture building.

Registrations have already been received from boys in Cole Camp, Ottaville, Sedalia, Skyline and Smithton.

At least 60 participants are expected for the first session, which runs through June 11.

The camp is approved by the Missouri State High School Activities Association.

In addition to Chamberlain, now with the Los Angeles Lakers of the National Basketball Association, and Adderly, a defensive standout for the Dallas Cowboys football team, other alumni of Philadelphia public schools who have distinguished themselves in professional athletics include: Guy Rodgers, formerly of the San Francisco Warriors basketball team; Earl Monroe, high-scoring guard for the Baltimore Bullets of the NBA; and Jim Katcavage, a retired linebacker for the New York Giants football team.

Philadelphia schoolboy basketball is considered by court experts to be among the most competitive in the country. Each year's senior class produces hosts of top prospects for major college teams. One recent graduate of Chamberlain's high school, Andre McCarter, has received 250 collegiate offers.

High school athletes would be the latest to suffer in the financial crisis facing the Philadelphia school systems.

The school board began paying 26,000 teachers and employees in scrip this week because it couldn't raise $20 million necessary to meet the last two payrolls of the school year. Employees will be able to exchange the notes for cash this summer.

Miller's 65 Leads Field

ATLANTA (AP) — A two-month slump almost convinced young Californian John Miller to bypass the $125,000 Atlanta Golf Classic.

"I've been scoring so badly lately I just wanted to go home," he said. "The only reason I came here is because I like this course."

The 24-year-old blond enhanced his liking of the hilly, 6,883-yard Atlanta Country Club course Thursday when he fired a sizzling seven-under-par 32-33-65 with a round that included an eagle, seven birdies and a pair of bogeys.

It gave him a two-shot lead over a quartet deadlocked at 67—Jack Nicklaus, Orville Moody, Ray Floyd and Dave Eichelberger.

It was Miller's best round on the tour since his closing 68 that forged him into a two-way tie for second with Nicklaus in the prestigious Masters at Augusta two months ago.

Miller, who started on the back nine, scored his eagle three on the 509-yard No. 18—his ninth hole—when he pitched in from 40 yards. He birdied the first and second holes with putts of 30 and three feet and was on his way to equalling the first round record for the Atlanta event.

He also sank birdie putts ranging from 12-15 feet on four holes, two-putted for another on a par five hole and sank a five-footer on his other one. Miller's bogeys came on No. 16 where he put his tee shot in a bunker and on No. 4 where he three-putted.

Defending champion Tommy Aaron, whose only PGA tour victory in 10 years came in this tournament last year, shot a 71 and was well back in the field.

Nicklaus, ending his three-week layoff, had only one bogey when he drove an iron shot into the front bunker on the par three third and missed a 12-foot putt. Among his six birdies was a 35-foot putt on No. 4.

Seven others were deadlocked at 68—Lee Trevino, Bob Lunn, Gardner Dickinson, Jim Colbert, Jim Dent, Rod Curl and Bob Barabara. South African Gary Player and Masters champion Charles Coody were among eight players grouped at 69.

Almost one-third of the field—43 players—were under par after the opening round.

George Peeples Says He Won't Report to Utah

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — George Peeples says he would rather retire than report to the Utah Stars of the American Basketball Association.

Peeples, 27, said he had been assured by Carl Scheer, general manager of the Carolina Cougars of the ABA, that he was among three players who would be insulated from being chosen by the Stars as part of a deal by which the Cougars obtained the rights to Jim McDaniels, seven-foot rookie from Western Kentucky.

But Larry Keech, sports writer for the Greensboro Daily News, quoted Peeples as saying in an interview Wednesday, three days after being informed of his selection by Utah, that he would rather retire.

Cycle Races Sunday

The Central Cycle Association will hold its second motorcycle race of the season, Sunday.

The scrambles races will begin at 1:30 p.m. Heat and final events are scheduled on the program, with consolation races being held for the larger classes.

Four mini-bikes ran during the opening race three weeks ago. They provided so much entertainment that promoters of the track have added them to the program as well.

The class will be for boys and girls under the age of 12. A powder puff class may also be held for women, if enough ladies sign up.

Track conditions should be improved, with the addition of new watering facilities to eliminate dust. A new public address system has also been added along with upgrading of the scoring system.

Class winners in the opening race included Park Denny (100cc), Larry Brooks (125cc), James Fox (175cc), Rick Yeager (250cc) and Jim Dernasatope (unlimited).

Opening lead—♦3

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Here is a good hand to try on your friends. Make them play three no-trump against a diamond lead. Five clubs presents no problem. After they go down, don't laugh at them. We watched one of the best players in the country toss the game out the window when the hand came up in a rubber bridge game.

The play starts simply enough. You duck two diamonds and win the third one and here is the key play. You must throw away a club from dummy!

Now play the ace of clubs to see if the queen will drop

It doesn't and you knew it wouldn't. Now lead your last diamond and discard another club from dummy. West is on lead and can play any card he wishes, but you will wind up with nine tricks. Two spades, one heart, one diamond and five clubs.

What happens if you don't get rid of those two clubs? You won't collect five club tricks. When you play the ace and king, you will be left with the 5-4-2 and dummy with 8-6. In other words, you will be blocked in dummy with a good club in your hand.

You would go down several tricks on this line of play if the club queen failed to drop, but a few extra tricks down mean very little when you risk them to make your game contract.

FUNNY BUSINESS

Reform Bill Is In Danger

WASHINGTON (AP) — The future of an election-reform bill has been clouded by two Senate committees' opposing stands on limiting campaign spending and contributions.

The Rules Committee completed work on the bill Thursday, tailoring it close to Nixon administration specifications by reversing a number of Commerce Committee-approved provisions.

A $5,000 limit on individual contributions to one candidate was removed by the Rules Committee at White House urging. And by a 4-3 vote the panel approved an over-all ceiling on advertising spending, instead of separate limitations on broadcast and other advertising.

The Commerce Committee had provided separate limitations—five cents for each person of voting age—on expenditures for radio and TV time and for newspapers, magazines and billboards.

It rejected, by a 9-8 vote, the Rules Committee proposal to allow a candidate to spend all the 10-cents-per-vote allocation on one type of advertising.

The effect of the change in the case of a presidential candidate would be to permit $14 million expenditures for radio and TV time in next year's campaign instead of about $7 million, if no use were made of nonbroadcast media.

In the 1968 presidential campaign, Republicans spent $12.7 million on radio and TV broadcasts, Democrats $6.1 million.

Knocking out the $5,000 limitation on individual contributions to a candidate for federal office had bipartisan support in the Rules Committee. But in the Commerce Committee it was tabled by a vote of 11 to 6.

Symbol To Fade From TV

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — NBC's peacock is singing his swan song this summer. The colorful bird will disappear this fall from the nation's television screens somewhat like the cheshire cat in "Alice in Wonderland"—gradually and a victim of obsolescence.

Elimination of the peacock in prime evening time is the beginning of a network effort to cut down the clutter of odds and ends at the beginning and end of programs and in the commercial break.

The peacock was introduced years ago to tell viewers with black and white sets that they were missing the treat of color. Today, virtually all programs are in color and close to half of the 60-million TV homes are equipped to receive it. For some time, the bird has been most useful to hard-up joke writers of Bob Hope and Johnny Carson. What viewers could use now is a tip off when a program is in black-and-white. When those monotone shades turn up, in old "Beverly Hillsbillies" reruns and such, it is easy to believe that the set has gone on the fritz. A picture of a sparrow or blackbird would fill the niche.

NBC also will cut out a lot of those one-sentence spots urging the viewer to tune in some future program, and it will reduce the time occupied by opening and closing program credits. It still will tell who applied the makeup and designed the clothes, however, since it is mandatory in union contracts. But under the new rules, Ed McMahon will no longer be announcing Carson's upcoming guests while our eyes are telling us that Florence Bush styled Miss Dawn's hair and Botany supplied the hero's sports jackets.

These moves will liberate only a minute or so of the welter, but the tiny step is in the right direction. A lot of promotional material and gimmickery has crept into the station breaks. While no more time is given to commercials, more of them are crowded into the breaks. Thus there are piggy-back commercials—two products of the same or related sponsors in one time spot—and, more recently, two 30-second sales pitches where once there was one twice as long.

ABC will inter "A World Apart" at the end of this month after attempting to nurse the soap opera into good health over a couple of seasons. It will be replaced by reruns of "Love, American Style."

While prime-time series are given—at the outside—13 weeks to prove themselves in the Nielsen ratings, soap operas have a much longer trial period—it takes time to develop those loyal audiences. "A World Apart" ran into trouble primarily from CBS's "Search for Tomorrow," around for years and one of the most successful programs in the daytime schedules.

Elimination of any limitation on the amount of individual contributions was based on the bill's requirements for full disclosure of campaign financing.

All political committees receiving or spending more than $1,000 a year in support of a candidate for federal office would have to file detailed reports of contributions and expenditures.

Other Rules Committee changes would:

—Repeal for all federal office seekers, rather than just presidential and vice presidential candidates, a requirement that if broadcasters give time to any candidate they must provide equal time for all candidates for the office.

—Prohibit federally regulated industries such as airlines and telephone companies from extending credit for candidates' campaigns without bond or other security.

Prisoner Ship Is Sent Back

ABOARD U.S. TROOPSHIP UPSHUR OFF VIETNAM (AP) — The American troopship Upshur with 13 disabled North Vietnamese prisoners of war aboard turned back toward South Vietnam today after Hanoi announced its agreement to accept the prisoners was off.

The ship and her escort of 10 gunboats had circled off the South Vietnamese coast all morning awaiting further instructions following North Vietnam's announcement in Paris that the release agreement was annulled.

The Upshur never entered the 36-mile-long cease-fire area off the demilitarized zone where the transfer had been scheduled to take place. She headed south shortly after noon.

The prisoners had been flown from the Bien Hoa POW camp near Saigon and boarded the Upshur at Da Nang Thursday afternoon. They returned to a South Vietnamese POW camp at Da Nang.

"We believe we have complied with the Geneva convention and the conditions of the agreement," said a spokesman for the U.S. military. "We deeply regret the other side did not accept this humanitarian offer."

In balking at the last minute, the North Vietnamese accused the U.S. and South Vietnamese governments of blocking the release of most of the 570 disabled POWs Saigon had offered on April 29 to free. A statement distributed in Paris Thursday said the arrangements Hanoi agreed to "are no longer valid."

This week, five weeks after the original offer, the Saigon government announced that only 13 of the prisoners were willing to go home. Repatriation was offered to another 90 disabled prisoners, but they, too, refused. The South Vietnamese government said the refusals were given in interviews with representatives of the International Red Cross. Foreign Minister Tran Van Lam claimed those who refused feared reprisals in the North.

Civil rights lawyers turned to the high court when the three-judge panel in Jackson issued an apportionment plan May 18 for election to the state legislature that makes Hinds County a multimember district with five state senators and 12 state representatives.

The deadline for filing for election was today, but the unsigned ruling postponed it until June 14 and ordered the court in Jackson, barring "insurmountable difficulties," to come up with a single-member district plan for the county.

Single-member districts generally are favored by black voters. When blacks are included in a larger district, their voting strength may be outweighed by whites.

Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter said the decision "puts us in a category with the other states."

He said it has been obvious Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell has singled out the South for closer scrutiny in reapportionment cases.

"I think the district courts probably are more understanding of regional problems," he said.

The foreign ministers in their final communique today were expected to point out that they took the initiative three years ago of offering the Soviets talks on troop cuts, and that Brezhnev's offer May 14 to negotiate was a belated reply.

The Portuguese and Greek representatives replied sharply. Manlio Brosio, NATO's secretary-general, intervened to criticize the Portuguese representative in his own capital.

Brosio's retirement was to be announced today. Dutch Foreign Minister Joseph Luns is to succeed him in the fall.

A sharp family squabble erupted at Thursday's session when Norwegian Foreign Minister Andreas Cappelen, a Socialist, attacked the authoritarian governments of Portugal and Greece. He was supported by Denmark and Canada.

Probe Mysterious Death of Woman

JOPLIN, Mo. (AP) — Jasper county officials are investigating the death of Delores Mills, 37, of Joplin after they were tipped Thursday by an anonymous caller that she would be found in an alley by her home.

She was found unconscious and taken to a hospital where she died four hours later.

Will Attend Inauguration Of President

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew will attend the third-term inauguration of South Korea's President Chung Hee Park July 1.

Agnew's press secretary, Vic Gold, said plans for the trip have not been completed, but confirmed the vice president will represent President Nixon at the inauguration.

The vice president is not now scheduled to visit neighboring Asian countries, but diplomatic sources said Agnew will confer in Seoul with a number of heads of government and dignitaries attending the ceremony.

Among these will be Japanese Prime Minister Eisaku Sato, who will meet privately with the vice president.

Agnew also is expected to meet with Kim Jong Pil, the new South Korean prime minister who engineered the 1961 military coup which brought Park to leadership.

American officials who have dealt with Kim in the past were not surprised by his appointment, nor did they praise it. There was a time when Kim was an unpopular figure in Washington as a result of the coup, but much of that unpopularity has lessened with time.

Ann Landers

Bolt The Door Is Ann's Advice

Dear Ann Landers: I live in Los Angeles in a high-class apartment building with a well-guarded entrance and electronic devices to catch people who don't belong there. I mention this so you will know why I do not feel it is necessary to lock and bolt the front door. You see, I was raised in Norfolk, Nebraska, and nobody ever locked their doors in Norfolk. I married in 1936 and we lived for many years in Grand Rapids, Michigan. Nobody locked their doors there, either.

My problem is a woman in this building. She has a habit of coming into my apartment without knocking. Yesterday I stepped out of the bathtub and nearly bumped into her. She was standing in the doorway. "Oh," she said, "No wonder you couldn't hear me. The water was running." Two weeks ago I was taking a nap and when I woke up I found her in the kitchen. She had come to borrow a cup of sugar.

How can I break this woman of this rude habit? Please don't tell me to lock the door. I am too old to change my ways. Thank you. — L. A. Lady.

Dear A. L.: So you're too old to change your ways? Well, if you don't change your ways you might not get any older. Los Angeles isn't Norfolk, and it's not Grand Rapids either. And 1971 isn't 1936. So get with it, Lady, before you meet somebody in your kitchen who did not come to borrow a cup of sugar.

Dear Ann Landers: Today is a sad one for me — maybe the saddest in my life. My son was placed under arrest for "contributing to the delinquency of a minor." The girl is pregnant, 14 years old, and lives in this building. She literally threw herself at my Albert.

Last summer the little tramp came over here wearing a half bra and shorts cut up to her neck. I never saw anything like it. The girl was as fully developed as any 20-year-old Swedish actress. Once when I saw her plunk herself down on my son's lap I phoned her mother and told her to keep that little sex-pot at home.

Albert is nearly 21 and I suppose he should have known better, but after all, man is not made of wood. I say the girl and her mother are to blame. Please print my advice to other mothers with good looking sons: If you see something like this happening under your nose, get in there and break it up. — Heartsick In White Plains.

Dear W.P.: There will always be sex-pots — and the age bracket is getting lower. My question is this: What's with a 20-year-old man that he would be fooling around with a 14-year-old girl? He has to be an idiot. Your Albert needs counseling and you could use some, too, Mom.

Dear Ann Landers: We live in a small community. My husband and I have some close friends who are as dear to us as if they were sister and brother. We are very hurt because they have not yet seen our new grandchild. The baby is four months old.

They say they are waiting for an invitation. We do not feel that an invitation need be extended. What is your opinion? — For Peace.

Dear Peace: When a baby is born it is customary for friends to wait a few weeks, then phone the new parents and say, "We'd like to come by and see the baby. Is tomorrow night convenient?" (It is also customary to bring a little gift.) If this couple is as close as you say I can't understand why they haven't done so. Good manners is also common sense.

Here Are Some Ways To Dewax Furniture

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — Evalina wanted to know how to remove the wax build-up on a table where someone had set a hot dish. The following is a method I learned when I started to restore antiques. Often these finishes do not need redoing as a simple cleaning does the job. In a double boiler, put two parts linseed oil and one part turpentine and heat until warm but not too hot. With a soft cloth rub this mixture into the furniture and then wipe off the excess with a clean cloth. This brings back the original beauty unless the finish has been damaged. This works so well that I use it twice a year to clean the finish on all my furniture. — JEAN

DEAR READERS — There is some difference in opinions as to the quantities as some say three parts linseed oil to one of turpentine. Too much turpentine will soften varnish. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — Evalina could use a liquid wax remover to take the old wax off her dining room table. This can be bought at a paint store. After using it, apply fresh wax and polish. On varnished surfaces, oil of peppermint on a damp cloth can be used to remove spots and then polish dry. — MRS. C. L.

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — I would like to know how the other readers clean brass electric light switch plates that are screwed to the wall. — ETHEL

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is that every safety article I read relating to young children and poisons and medicine caution us to lock medicine cabinets and kitchen cabinets. Have you ever seen one such cabinet that came with a lock on it? I have not. — JUNE

Allergy and Infections Can Be Cause of Asthma

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — Please help me. I am 60 years old and have had asthma for three years. My worst attacks occur during the summer months (July to October). I usually end up in the emergency room at the hospital. I am taking pills. Every so often I take cortisone. It works like magic but I already have a cataract. Is there anything new for asthma?

Dear Reader — There are two general causes for asthma — allergies and infection. Since you are having attacks in the summer and fall I would suspect you have an allergic type of asthma similar to the hay fever problem. For this type of asthma the attacks can be reduced or in some cases eliminated by eliminating contact with the allergic agent and taking allergy shots. House dust can be minimized, household pets and feather pillows may have to be removed. An allergist can skin test a person and identify substances that the patient is allergic to. Then a series of shots of the substance in diluted form are given to gradually remove the allergic response. Such a program does wonders for many suffering from asthma.

If you should have the infectious type of asthma, you need to avoid respiratory infections and treatment of infections takes the place of treatment for allergies.

Dear Dr. Lamb — A few years ago my husband passed away. On his death certificate is "acute pulmonary edema." He worked that day, brought home his pay and was planning to go fishing in the morning. The shock was great. In plain English, what happened to him? What does pulmonary edema mean?

Dear Reader — Edema refers to the accumulation of fluid. Acute means sudden and pulmonary refers to the lungs. Your husband had a sudden accumulation of fluid in his lungs, enough to interfere with his ability to breathe. There are several causes for this but the most common is underlying heart disease. Sudden heart failure can bring this about. Some people with high blood pressure have attacks of this after they go to bed at night. The heart is unable to pump enough blood and blood accumulates in the lungs that should be returned to the heart. The increased pressure in the blood vessels in the lungs results in fluid in the bloodstream pouring out into the tissues. In this problem the fluid accumulates in the air sacs of the lung — sometimes causing an attack much like an acute attack of asthma. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

TV Borrows From Past For Anthology Series

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — Progress. It means going forward, but there's no reason why you can't steal a little from the past as you bravely march into the future.

Maybe you hadn't noticed, but that's what TV has been doing lately. TV's history is full of anthology series — Philco, U.S. Steel, Playhouse 90 and the rest — which eventually faltered and flopped.

TV's present and, most likely, future are full of the movies-for-TV programs. What they really are, of course, are anthology series — done on film and called World Premier or Tuesday Night at the Movies, or whatever, but boiled down they are sneaky ways of reviving the old anthology concept.

Next fall, CBS will have a new one which is the old Suspense show, tricked out with film and 90 minutes, but still nothing more than an old-fashioned suspense anthology series.

Philip Barry is producing it — the network is calling it CBS'

Friday Night Movies — and he thinks there's a good reason for the rebirth of anthologies.

"In the '50s," he says, "anthologies were big. And they helped improve the public's taste. That led, in the '60s, to an upturn in the quality of movies. Now that has led, in turn, to the public's demand for better TV, so I think the '70s will see better TV — and the only way to do that is through anthologies."

Barry believes the public's taste, today, is better than it has ever been in U.S. history — through exposure to so much, they have become selective.

His program next fall will be all-suspense, of various sorts.

Nashville Singer Soars To Top

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Sometimes a singer-songwriter is discovered in Nashville in the general country tradition, but startlingly individual. The last time this happened big was when Roger Miller's "King of the Road" soared to the top of the pop charts.

Now, Kris Kristofferson, 33, is happening. Last fall his "Sunday Morning Comin' Down" was named song of the year by the Country Music Association. Johnny Cash introduced him on his TV show as "the finest young songwriter today." The late Janis Joplin's record of his "Me and Bobby McGee" was No. 3 on the pop charts for two weeks in March and had dropped only to No. 10 on April 10. He has made two movies, neither yet released.

His variegated background includes study at Oxford and five years of starving in Nashville.

"Now I can't write songs fast enough," Kristofferson says. "When they think you're hot, they're digging songs they didn't like before. You know 'For the Good Times'—I couldn't give that away. Bill Nash cut a great record on it three years ago for Mercury. I thought it was going to be my first big hit. But it wasn't played. He was dropped off the label. Everybody's singing it now."

Kristofferson grew up in Brownsville, Tex., went to Pomona College in California and on to Oxford's School of English Language and Literature, on a Rhodes Scholarship. "Some of it is going into the lyrics," he says, "I don't consider any of it wasted." Then he got married and went into the Army for five years, the first three as a helicopter pilot in Germany. "I started a folk-country group in the Army in Germany. A guy in my unit had a relative in Nashville and I went there on leave. People said, 'Come back when you get out of the service.' It was all the encouragement I needed."

"I started writing music when I was a little kid. I was kind of country music oriented I guess because I like simple music and the emphasis on lyrics and the emotion. It's a feeling I can relate to. My songs are lyric-oriented."

"I wrote 'Vietnam Blues' on my way to Nashville to live in 1965. When I got off the plane in Washington I saw war protesters. I wrote a talking blues, from a soldier's point of view. I got that cut my first week in Nashville. It was a pretty good country record, but it didn't do much. It branded me as a right-winger. I was embarrassed I'd written it."

"Then I didn't make any money for like about five years. If anybody had told me I'd be starving for five years I'd have been a little depressed. I separated from my wife three times. "I just did odd jobs, labor and stuff. At Columbia Records I was a flunky, cleaning up after sessions, for a year and a half. I worked as a bartender. I flew helicopters for 20 months. I quit those jobs about a year ago."

"It's hard when people don't know you. There are so many good writers in Nashville. People go to them, the ones who have proven themselves. "I got known in kind of gradual steps. At jam sessions, song writers started picking up on my material. In Nashville, people pitch each other's songs. They're not competing, which is refreshing. I got a lot of help from established writers and new guys as well."

Roger Miller was the first big artist to record one of my songs. His cut of 'Me and Bobby McGee' was the first that got any attention. Then Johnny Cash started helping me out. The first thing I ever did in public was when Johnny Cash put me on his show at the Newport Folk Festival in 1969. I was just up there to watch him, and it scared the devil out of me, but it went over pretty good. The guy who owns Monument Records got me to record for him."

His first LP, "Kristofferson," is about to be followed by a second.

Kristofferson recently produced a Joan Baez record in Nashville. He says, "She has got about eight songs of her own on it. She just started to write; she wrote a song for her husband and one for her sister. She is writing real well. She turns them out so fast it is embarrassing."

Kristofferson's voice is heard in the movie "Ned Kelly." He plays the lead, a musician-dealer, in "Dealer." And he is in "The Last Movie." "When I went to Peru I thought I was going to do the music. I have half a dozen songs in it and there are another person's songs in it."

"Movies are interesting but I would like writing and directing one. Acting is okay but for me it's sort of like singing somebody else's songs."

Mum's The Word
(NEA) — Elizabeth Allen was thrilled, pleased, delighted and overjoyed when she was offered a big starring role in Howard Koch's "Star Spangled Girl" for Paramount. And she was even happier when she learned she's on screen in virtually every scene.

"When can I see a script?" she asked. "I want to start working on the dialogue so I'll have the timing perfect."

"Don't worry," Koch said. "You'll have no trouble with this part."

And, when she saw the script, she realized he was right — she doesn't say a single word in the entire film.

Accept Amendment Expanding Powers

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A constitutional amendment to expand powers of charter cities over 5,000 population was passed by the Missouri Senate Thursday, 25-2.

It will now go on the 1972 ballot or possibly at a special election before then. It is the first proposed constitutional amendment to win its way through both houses.

Sen. Richard M. Webster R-Carthage, said the proposal was recommended by the Governor's Commission on Local Government to take the shackles off of charter cities.

Under it, any charter city over 5,000 could enact any ordinance not specifically prohibited by the city's charter or by law.

Webster said that if the people approve it, the number of local bills clogging the legislature would be cut down by more than 25 per cent.

The amendment was introduced in the House by Rep. Jack Schramm, D-University City, and there was no debate as it sailed through the Senate.

Passed and sent back to the House before the Senate quit work for the weekend was a bill to require land scarred by mining of clay, limestone, sand or gravel to be reclaimed either for agricultural or forestry purposes.

It is a companion bill to one passed earlier and already signed by the governor covering reclamation of land cut up by strip mining of coal and barite. The same land reclamation commission would administer both laws.

Sen. William J. Cason D-Clinton, said limestone quarry operators had agreed to provisions of the bill, which passed the Senate by a vote of 25-0.

Also sent back to the House for action on a Senate change was a bill providing for pre-introduction of bills during December before the annual legislative sessions start in January. It is intended to give the legislature a running start on its work.

Passed and sent to the governor were bills to:

Let ham radio operators have special licenses for a $5 extra fee.

Prevent the taxation of insurance or other employee benefits as income, the same as the federal law.

Authorize the Missouri Department of Corrections to contract with other states for the incarceration of prisoners.

Transfer the old National Guard armory in Kansas City to the city.

Let the State Park Board lease an unused section of Knob Noster State Park to the city of Knob Noster for use as a city park.

Grant the city of Fulton an easement across state hospital property for water and other utility lines.

Earlier, the troublesome problem of congressional redistricting was headed toward conference committee settlement.

On a 7-21 vote, the Senate rejected the House redistricting plan that was criticized as an unfair gerrymander by both Democrats and Republicans.

Then it asked the House to accept the Senate version or put the whole problem in a House-Senate conference committee, the usual method of settling such last minute political squabbles.

Earlier the Senate passed and sent back to the House a broad new drug control bill, revising prohibited drugs to fit federal standards.

The vote was 30-1 with Sen. James A. Noland Jr., of Osage Beach the lone dissenter. The bill has been endorsed by doctors, druggists and law enforcement officials.

a Berlin settlement and troops cuts in Europe.

Possible negotiations with the Soviet bloc on mutual troop reductions are a key issue in the conference.

U.N. Secretary-General U Thant, speaking in New York, strongly endorsed the Soviet proposal for troop reduction talks between NATO and the Communist bloc.

In Moscow, the Communist party newspaper Pravda claimed that hawks in the Atlantic Alliance were trying to block any detente with the Soviet-organized Warsaw Pact countries. The article claimed that Washington "helmsmen" were trying to force through NATO "a new round of military preparations."

NATO's council of foreign ministers, representing the 15 alliance members, plunged into debate on the strategy of negotiations with the Communist leaders.

U.S. Secretary of State William P. Rogers argued for a double approach to troop reductions and the organization of a new security system for central Europe.

He proposed an early meeting of NATO deputy foreign ministers to prepare precise plans and procedures for negotiations on reduction of troops.

He opposed Moscow's call for a Europe-wide security conference, standing firm on previous NATO demands that the Big Four reach agreement first with Moscow on the future of divided Berlin.

saying that it would give them considerably more than the administration proposal.

Muskie has introduced a factor of need into the distribution formula in his bill while the Nixon formula is based on population and tax effort.

In the House committee, Mills and others hit hard at what he called the capricious distribution formula in the administration bill.

It is a complicated mathematical computation. The division among the states would be principally by population, modified, to the extent of about 12 per cent, by "tax effort." This would be determined by comparing state tax collections with personal income.

Then each state share would be further broken down between the central government and the local units, on the basis of tax receipts.

NATO Support Won By Rogers

LISBON (AP) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers won broad support Thursday from the North Atlantic Treaty Organization for high-level talks with the Soviet Union on East-West troop cuts. He gave an over-all optimistic review of the world scene.

While NATO's diplomats and generals were talking about reducing tension, four terrorist bombs went off in Lisbon and its suburbs, knocking out all of the city's landline communications for five hours.

The explosions, which caused no casualties, were blamed on the Portuguese Communist party that accuses Portugal of colonialism in Africa.

Rogers told NATO's Council of Foreign Ministers that prospects were good for dousing the flashpoint of war in Asia and the Middle East and for easing the arms confrontation in Europe. His appraisal included these views:

—The Vietnam war seems to be running down and by next December American troop strength will be 67 per cent below the level that President Nixon encountered in early 1969.

—American efforts to improve relations with Red China are continuing and Washington will announce next week the end of trade curbs in effect for 22 years.

—He is hoping the Israelis and Egyptians will reach an initial agreement to reopen the Suez Canal within six months.

—Positive trends have been found in Soviet policies on strategic arms limitation,

Administration Hopes Resting on Testimony

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration is pinning its dogged hopes for revenue sharing on testimony still to come about state and city needs and its offer to modify a much-criticized distribution plan.

"You've got to keep in mind that the hearings have just started," Secretary of the Treasury John B. Connally told newsmen after two days of testimony before a predominantly critical House Ways and Means Committee.

Connally is the spokesman for President Nixon's proposal to distribute $5 billion with no strings to states and localities.

Committee chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., said of Connally, "It's his responsibility to be optimistic."

"There isn't a ghost of a chance that Congress will pass revenue sharing," Mills said. "Anybody who thinks I'm going to change my mind doesn't know what he's talking about."

Mills also said something must be done to help cities out of their financial plight, at least temporarily, by legislation. He said he has an idea, but isn't ready to talk about it.

On the Senate side, Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Me., conducted another of his series of hearings to give proponents of revenue sharing a chance to be heard.

Ten mayors from many of the nation's largest cities told Muskie's Intergovernmental Relations subcommittee they were in such desperate financial shape that only the federal government could bail them out.

Most of the mayors strongly praised the Muskie revenue sharing bill in preference to the one offered by President Nixon,

A ruling is expected in July from a National Labor Relations Board trial examiner who heard testimony here Wednesday in a labor dispute involving Letourneau Brothers Construction Co.

Charges of unfair labor practices were filed against the company by Sedalia Carpenter Local 1792. The complaint was signed by Thomas C. Hendrix, regional director of the NLRB, and released May 19.

Both parties in the case will receive summaries of Wednesday's hearing within about 10 days and both must file briefs in the case by June 29.

The union claims the Letourneau firm failed to meet wage specifications of a contract allegedly adopted July 1, 1970. It also says the firm tried to persuade employees to drop their union membership.

day-long hearing and one witness was called by the construction company late in the afternoon.

The first two witnesses, Louis H. Tempel and William Yarboro, were questioned about their affiliation with the Sedalia Builders Association. The union claims that the Letourneau firm is a member of the association and had agreed, along with other members, on certain wage standards.

Yarboro's testimony lasted into the afternoon and dealt mainly with the question of whether a builders association actually existed. Yarboro was secretary of the NLRB because he is allegedly secretary of the association.

When asked after the hearing if there was such an organization, he said, "I'm pretty confused whether there is or not. We joined together as a body only to negotiate contracts with the union. No one has ever named it the Sedalia Building Association."

Plan Anti-Litter Campaign

Major Jerry Jones discusses ways of keeping Sedalia clean with leaders of Boy Scout troops in Sedalia after he signed a proclamation Thursday morning designating Saturday as "Keep America Beautiful Day." Troop leaders who will spearhead the litter cleanup

Boy Scouts Beginning Clean Up

"We want to help keep Sedalia clean so visitors can say they've been to a clean city." This is one of the reasons why 12-year-old Robert Johnson, 2405 Albert Lee, is excited about the "Keep America Beautiful Day" Saturday by Boy Scouts across the nation.

Johnson, who is a leader of Boy Scout Troop 56 (sponsored by the Heber Hunt PTA), told The Democrat-Capital that he would like for other Sedalians to help keep the city clean by "not throwing cans away."

Johnson was one of eight Boy Scout troop leaders who were with Mayor Jerry Jones Thursday morning when he signed a proclamation designating Saturday as "Keep America Beautiful Day." The boys were accompanied by Don Livingston, chairman of the Twin Forks district, and Rex Rudy, marketing director for Parkhurst Inc., who was recently named director-coordinator of Saturday's observance.

Johnson added that the Scouts hope to raise funds for their activities by selling beverage bottles and cans which they will collect Saturday.

Scout Troop 66 leader Charles Braden, 2500 Southwest Blvd., said his troop wants to "serve Sedalia in many ways and collecting litter is one of them."

Sedalia Boy Scouts will be among the more than six million scouts and their adult leaders in the United States who will forge a major attack against litter on streets, highways and in recreation areas.

According to Rudy, more than 400 scouts in the Twin Forks district, comprising Pettis and Saline Counties, will be involved in the cleanup campaign Saturday. Parkhurst Manufacturing Co. will provide trailers to haul the trash to the State Fairgrounds.

Rudy said that "Keep America Beautiful Day" is a highlight of the Boy Scouts' Project SOAR (Save Our American Resources). Throughout the year the project conducts action programs designed to improve the environment and to create concern for its betterment, Rudy said.

He added that each boy who participates will be presented a special neckerchief slide by Peuton Breckinridge, Oklahoma state senator from Tulsa, and treated to a dinner at 5:30 p.m. Saturday in the Sheep Pavilion on the fairgrounds.

Rudy pointed out that one of the objectives of Saturday's observance is to "get across the story of recycling as a partial answer to the solid waste problem." Local bottling companies will have representatives at the Sheep Pavilion to buy bottles from the Boy Scouts, Rudy added.

He said that the litter collected on Saturday will be gathered into one heap on the fairgrounds to dramatize the Boy Scouts' effort in improving Sedalia's environment.

Approve License Scheme

(Democrat-Capital Service)

JEFFERSON CITY — The Missouri House Wednesday approved a combination driver license-identification card bill introduced in mid-January by Rep. Joe Rains, Sedalia. The measure now goes to Gov. Warren E. Hearnes to be signed into law.

The new plastic license card would cost $3, and would be good for three years. It would bear a color photograph of the owner.

Rains said the new card would contain a Social Security number and other pertinent identification data. He added the card could be used as the identification required for the purchase of liquor, with the present Liquor Control Department's ID card being eliminated because, according to Rains, "it costs the state a lot of money."

The new license would cost 60 cents more than the current driver's license which is good for a similar three year period. Rains said combining the driver's license and identification card would save the state a considerable amount of money.

Rains indicated the state would contract to have the licenses processed. He said the contractor would install photo equipment in license offices and take applicants' pictures as they arrive.

Although the new card would not replace Social Security cards, Rains said it would make presentation of Social Security numbers more convenient.

Also headed for the governor's desk were bills to:

—Require any new policeman in St. Louis County to show within six months he has successfully passed a course in police training. It would also apply to Jackson County when it becomes a first class county with charter form of government.

—Require motorists to yield the right-of-way for an emergency vehicle, including a volunteer fireman.

—A measure to make sales by state institutions and schools subject to sales tax.

—Require railroad policemen to get permits from the highway patrol and grant them arrest authority on railway grounds or when in hot pursuit.

—Allow fire protection district boards to meet four times a month instead of two. The House accepted the Senate substitute for the bill which would raise compensation for attendance at the meetings to $30 instead of the present $25.

Effect Cease-Fire Along DMZ Section

SAIGON (AP) — A cease-fire went into effect early Friday along a section of the demilitarized zone for the turnover of 13 sick and wounded North Vietnamese prisoners, but fighting went on elsewhere in the South Vietnam.

There was no certainty that North Vietnam would accept the prisoners. It is angered by South Vietnam's claim that only 13 of 570 prisoners questioned by the International Red Cross agreed to go home. The Red Cross confirmed the prisoner report.

The 24-hour cease-fire went into effect at 1 a.m. It will be observed by U.S. and South Vietnamese forces along the zone separating North and South Vietnam.

Maj. Charles Johnson, a spokesman for the U.S. Command, said several fire bases were included in the cease-fire area and troops operating from them would not conduct offensive operations.

The cease-fire, a condition set forth by North Vietnam for the prisoner release, applies to all military operations in a 37-mile section along the demilitarized zone from a point a half mile off the coast of South Vietnam.

Before the cease-fire, North Vietnamese gunners fired 30 rounds of rockets into Fire Base Charlie 2, one of the bases included in the truce zone, wounding some Americans, the U.S. Command reported. The base is four miles south of the demilitarized zone.

The North Vietnamese prisoners, the only men from a group of 660 eligible to choose repatriation, will be transferred from an American barge to a North Vietnamese craft just off the coast of the demilitarized zone.

In addition to the 570 examined by the Red Cross, South Vietnam questioned 90 other disabled prisoners. It said most of them feared reprisals if they went home.

On the battlefield the South Vietnamese command announced that 2,500 marines were sweeping the northwest corner of the country in an effort to smash a North Vietnamese buildup.

The operation, launched Sunday is in an area 15-20 miles south of the demilitarized zone. The only significant contact so far reported came Wednesday when the enemy shelled one battalion.

Far to the south in Tay Ninh Province only 65 miles northwest of Saigon enemy gunners shelled and attacked a South Vietnamese ranger company. The rangers were operating seven miles from Cambodia's border.

Discover 24th Body In Orchard

YUBA CITY, Calif. (AP) — A 24th was discovered Thursday in an orchard north of Yuba City near where the bodies of 23 itinerant farm workers, hacked and stabbed to death, have been found buried.

It was the first body discovered since last Saturday when investigators water flooded portions of the orchards lining the banks of the Feather River, forcing deputies to scale down their search.

"It's No. 24," said Sheriff Roy D. Whiteaker.

The first body was found May 20. A 37-year-old farm labor contractor, Juan V. Corona, has pleaded innocent to murder charges in the deaths of 10 of the drifters and itinerant farm workers.

The bodies discovered so far have been those of men between 40 and 63.

Whiteaker had no comment Thursday on a report that an autopsy surgeon had discovered a 9mm bullet in one of the bodies.

A search of Corona's van turned up a leather zipper bag which contained, among other things, six 9mm bullets and an 18-inch machete, authorities said.

Whiteaker said there was no identification on the latest victim, who appeared to have been slain about a month ago.

Don S. Lamm Park Fitting Recognition

Next Monday the City Council is expected to make a decision on renaming Centennial Park to Don S. Lamm Centennial Park.

The proposal was passed on to the council by the Sedalia Park Board, which unanimously recommended that the change be made.

We support the idea of changing the name of the park, and see it as an appropriate form of recognition of a man who has made many contributions to the civic improvement of Sedalia.

This was especially true during the city's centennial celebration in 1960. It was Don Lamm who, as centennial chairman, spent untold hours—starting more than two years in advance—to insure that Sedalia's 100th birthday would be a week to remember.

The centennial chairman was an especially effective fund raiser, and it was largely this money that made possible the purchase of land for Centennial Park.

Of the nearly $25,000 used to purchase the land, $15,683.78 came from the centennial fund, which was promoted and managed by Lamm as centennial chairman. And that money was what was left over, after all the myriad expenses of the centennial celebration were paid off. The balance of the Centennial Park cost was paid with money from the sale of the city's Center Park.

Indeed, Don Lamm's contributions toward the centennial celebration in virtually all areas, including overseeing the writing of the centennial history, make his name almost synonymous with the event.

But all of this happened almost a dozen years ago, and some memories appear to be a little dim on the subject. But civic pride and dedication should be remembered, as an inspiration to those who carry on today.

A fitting and proper way of remembering Don S. Lamm's contributions would be to rename his most lasting monument in his honor.

Police Break Up Affluent Protest

By ART BUCHWALD

WASHINGTON — More than 3,500 people were rounded up in mass arrests Thursday evening and thrown into the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts.

The demonstrators, wearing black ties, evening dresses, diamond necklaces and tiaras, had vowed to tie up Washington traffic around the Watergate Apartment complex with their Cadillac and Lincoln Continental chauffeur-driven limousines.

Buchwald

Police chief Jerry Wilson said that he had orders that anyone who participated in the demonstration, which had organized to get our symphony orchestra out of Constitution Hall, would be arrested.

At about 10 o'clock, the first demonstrators started chanting 'WE WANT CULTURE' to which their leaders yelled 'WHEN DO YOU WANT IT?' and they shouted back 'NOW.'

A police captain with a bullhorn said, "Unless you keep your limousines moving you will all be arrested." But the demonstrators refused to heed the warning and traffic was blocked up as far as the State Department. At the signal from the captain, the police immediately moved in and started making mass arrests.

Because of the large number of demonstrators, the police decided to detain all the people at the Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts.

The demonstrators had been prepared for this and most of them went peacefully, but once inside the detention center they couldn't believe the conditions that they had to put up with. People were jammed in tight in the halls and ante-rooms.

As each new group of demonstrators was brought in, it became obvious that the Kennedy Center did not have the facilities to handle them.

At 11 o'clock there was no gin left, and by 11:30 all the scotch had been drunk and some of the people started to cry.

The only food was a cold buffet and strawberries, and champagne, which had been hastily brought in by the Red Cross for the emergency.

The American Civil Liberties Union protested vigorously that the demonstrators were being detained under cruel and unlivable conditions and demanded that the people being held in the center either be charged or let go. But police said the demonstrators knew what they were getting into when they came out that night, and they felt no obligation to process them with any speed.

"Most of the people in there," said a police sergeant, "are troublemakers. They came from all over the country and if they want to tie up the traffic in Washington, they're getting what they deserve."

But reporters discovered inside the center that many innocent people had been rounded up in the mass arrests. One couple said, "We were on our way to see 'Love Story' and suddenly we were thrown in a bus and dumped in here."

A photographer said he was just taking pictures of the fireworks when two patrolmen grabbed him and threw him into the brass section of Meyer Davis' orchestra.

A woman, who said she was just walking her dog, found herself sleeping under Peter Duchin's piano. "The only reason I was picked up," she said tearfully, "is because my dog had long hair."

Although Chief Wilson denied it, the strategy behind the arrests was to keep the demonstrators there until 3 o'clock in the morning so that traffic would be running smoothly again.

The police chief set $100 bond for every person over 35 and $40 for those under. The organizers of the demonstration vowed they wouldn't be intimidated and promised to come back in September to tie up traffic again when the Kennedy Center was officially opened. A spot poll the next day revealed that most of the people who lived in Washington believed that the demonstrators who wound up in the Kennedy Center Thursday night had only themselves to blame.

Motorboat Pollution — The Environmental Protection Agency often protects the polluters rather than the environment. Conservationist Livingston Parmele tried to enlist the agency in his fight to end motorboat pollution of lakes and streams. After all, the EPA's own studies show outboards spew up to 30 per cent of their fuel into the water. But EPA's associate general counsel, Robert Zener, wrote Parmele that the Federal Water Pollution Control Act exempts "discharges of oil from properly functioning vessel engines. That, Parmele told us acidly, is exactly the point: no engine throwing off 30 per cent of its fuel can possibly be deemed "properly functioning."

Capp's Conspiracy — Al Capp, the humorist and hard-liner, is claiming his recent indictment in Wisconsin on dirty-old-man charges is part of a plot by the radical left to "get" him. But Lawrence Durning, the district attorney who issued the warrant for Capp's arrest, happens to be a former president of the Conservative Club

(now a chapter of Young Americans for Freedom) at the University of Wisconsin. He worked for Barry Goldwater in 1964 and was a delegate for Richard Nixon at the Republican convention in 1968. Although Capp's conspiracy theory might seem hard to buy, William Buckley, the brilliant conservative commentator, was sufficiently impressed with it to telephone Durning personally to make sure he hadn't been taken in by the Bolsheviks.

FAA Reversal — John Saxman, a dedicated air traffic controller, warned the Federal Aviation Administration 18 months ago of dangerous radar conditions over lower Virginia and upper North Carolina. The FAA did nothing, and six persons were killed last year in a crash caused by the very conditions Saxman had warned against. After we told the story, the FAA fired Saxman — allegedly because he was a "leader" of the air traffic controllers' "sick-in" for better working conditions. The charge that Saxman was a leader was transparent nonsense; he wasn't even an officer of the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization. The FAA refused, however, to reverse itself, even in the face of inquiries from Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., and from House Commerce Chairman Harley Staggers, D-W. Va. Now, however, a hearing examiner has ruled favorably on Saxman's appeal and the FAA has agreed to let him have his job back.

Cutbacks In Forces A Gamble

By BRUCE BLOSSAT
NEA News Analyst

WASHINGTON (NEA) — What are 300,000 U.S. military men doing in Western Europe 26 years after World War II?

We are all supposed to know much more about this than we did before the Senate heard and defeated the Mike Mansfield proposal to pull 150,000 men out of Europe. But, as we await the promised next debate on the issue, the question is: Do we know more?

Blossat

From Mansfield and other troop-cut supporters, the impression is gained variously that our NATO force is laden with fat, that its presence is merely symbolic (trip-wire to touch off our nuclear response if Russia attacks), that it is there to defend Europe for Europe's sake.

It is easy to dispose of this latter nation. Those who say "let the prospering Europeans defend themselves" simply haven't examined the military power equation. Only we have the might to give Russia pause. And if Europe is not OUR first defense line, why did we fight two world wars at a cost of hundreds of thousands of men?

There is fat in our European force, as elsewhere. But the padding does not come to 150,000 men. Not too long ago some 20,000 were cut from that force, as other thousands have been before. More could be cut — and should be. To go into big numbers, however, is to talk absurdity.

The argument that our NATO force is token, symbol, etc., is not advanced by sophisticated students of defense. For trip-wire purpose, 25,000 would do. An equipped force of 300,000 is intended for real defending.

Some say, yes, but the only practical defending it could do against a huge Soviet onslaught would be with tactical nuclear weapons, of which NATO has some 7,700.

Yet there is a very large doubt whether the NATO armies ever would begin tactical nuclear warfare.

Recently, an expert in defense affairs told me: "We really don't know what tactical nuclear war means." A strong feeling exists that it would grade quickly into The Big One. For one thing, tactical nuclear devices have enormous destructive power. In seeking out combat targets, almost certainly they would devastate some cities. Moreover, their range is great enough to permit them to reach far behind the fighting lines. When does such a weapon become strategic?

One study suggests a tactical nuclear exchange between NATO and the Soviet-Warsaw Pact countries might lead to destruction of 20 per cent of the build-up areas in the combat zones of West Germany, plus the killing of 12 million Germans.

Alain Enthoven, former assistant secretary of defense, is one among many who believe that Moscow has enough tactical nuclear weapons to answer us in kind — and that hence no such exchange is likely.

What does that leave? Just the idea that our forces in Europe, plus those of our NATO allies, are intended to have the capacity to fight a conventional war. Nuclear stalemate wipes out any real alternative.

Many who dabble with the NATO issue believe Western forces are heavily outmanned and outgunned by the Warsaw Pact armies. The recent "debate" on the Mansfield proposal did make clear, for those who listened, that this is not so.

The next time the troop-cut proposal comes up, it should be discussed in its real terms. It has to do with the kind of defense we want to make of Europe, and hence of ourselves.

To bring home 150,000 or more men but keep them ready for quick airlift to the NATO defense line is to cling to the present conventional war strategy. To deactivate returned NATO units could mean putting all our eggs in the nuclear basket. This is the heart of it, and we had better understand it.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

"Duck soup," chortled B. "This play was old when I first used it for R. F. Foster in 1920." South had won the club lead with the ace and lost the trump finesse to B at trick two.

B followed up his remark by leading the deuce of spades. West's nine forced out one of dummy's honors. Later on, when West gained the lead with a club, he was able to give B two spade tricks.

B's play was one that any really good player might have made. South was marked with both the ace and king of diamonds for his bids and, if he also held the jack of spades, there would be no defense possible.

Z, who had arrived too late to play, remarked to B, "If I had been declarer, I would have played the nine of clubs, not the ace, on the first trick. Your partner would have read your four-spot as a come-on and probably continued the suit. Whereupon, I would have romped home with my contract."

"I guess I would have done just that," said West. "I wonder what A would have done at trick two if he had been defending with B."

"A would probably have continued clubs, just as you would have."

You won't find the play Z suggested in any of the old columns. The reason Z is so tough is because he keeps finding new tricks to add to the ones he learned when he played auction.

American Casualties Increase

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. Command reported 48 American battle deaths in its weekly casualty summary today, the highest toll in four weeks.

The total included most of the 30 U.S. soldiers killed in three North Vietnamese shelling attacks May 21 against American bases in the northern part of the country. These attacks included the rocketing of Fire Base Charlie 2 in which 29 soldiers were killed and 33 wounded.

Although these casualties occurred two weeks ago, most of them had been omitted from last week's summary because of Army reporting delays and the time needed to make positive identification and notify next of kin. Today's summary covers a seven-day period up to midnight Saturday.

The reported death toll was the highest weekly count since the week ending May 1, when 68 combat deaths were reported.

The command's summary listed 229 U.S. wounded last week, a sharp increase over the 92 reported for the previous week but about the same level as in the first two weeks of May.

A command spokesman said 16 American servicemen died last week from nonhostile causes such as accidents and illness, compared with 11 in the previous week.

The latest figures raised American casualties in the war since Jan. 1, 1961, to 45,231 killed, 299,663 wounded and 9,564 deaths from nonhostile causes.

The South Vietnamese command reported 452 Saigon troops killed and 1,171 wounded last week, or about the same level as the previous week when 476 were reported killed and 1,015 wounded.

Rep. Robert E. Young, R-Carhage, said "some are born great. Some attain greatness — and others have low license numbers." He urged the bill's defeat and the House did that on a 43 to 99 vote.

The House sent to the governor a bill to revise the retirement system for Kansas City school teachers. After calling a house amendment to the Senate measure constitutionally out or order the House went ahead on the bill.

Three bills to increase salaries for the director of employment security director of corrections and commissioners of the State Public Service Commission also headed for the governor's desk.

The employment security director would get a pay raise from $18,000 a year to $21,000. The five PSC commissioners would be raised from $20,000 to $24,000.

Sponsors of those bills explained that funds for the salary increases would not come from state general revenue. Federal funds would pay the employment security hike and assessments from utilities under PSC regulation would pay the commissioners' increases.

The director of corrections' salary would go from $18,500 a year to $22,500.

Also sent to the governor were bills to:

Extend the life of the sesquicentennial board to March, 1972, so restorations at the first state capitol in St. Charles and other projects involved in Missouri's 150th anniversary celebration can be finished.

The House adjourned for the weekend on a leader's warning the members might have to work all through next weekend. The legislature work must be considered by midnight Tuesday, June 15.

City License Is Obtained For Ambulances

After a lapse of several months, Mid-Missouri Ambulance Service, operated by Rex Hutchings, 206 West Seventh, was licensed again Wednesday, it was reported.

Mrs. Opal Hugelman, city collector said Hutchings was licensed to operate two ambulances. According to city officials, Hutchings had applied earlier, but had to wait until satisfactory insurance arrangements were made.

City Clerk Ralph Dedrick told The Democrat-Capital Thursday that an ambulance operator has to have insurance in the amount of $25,000 for personal injury, $50,000 total coverage for any particular personal injury accident and $5,000 for property damage.

DAILY RECORD

Police Report

David Schick, an employee of the city parking meter department, reported to police at 8:15 a.m. Thursday that a city parking meter, valued at $75, was missing.

Schick told police he had noticed the meter missing last weekend, but had expected it to turn up.

Circuit Court

Bertha Belle McIntosh, a Kansas Citian who has been in Pettis County jail since Jan. 27 on a charge of receiving stolen property valued at more than $50, Thursday filed two motions in Circuit Court — one to suppress as evidence all articles taken from her at the time of arrest, and the other to suppress and exclude confessions of fact and statements from her now in possession of the prosecuting attorney.

The charge stems from the recovery of $8,000 worth of money orders from four Kansas Citians after their arrest in Sedalia on Jan. 27. The money orders were reportedly stolen from a Safeway store in Kansas City last October.

Another person arrested in the case, Bobby Delan Leonard, is now serving his sentence in the state penitentiary in Jefferson City. Another defendant, Letha Ann Richards, was released on parole earlier and Tommy Mitchell, the fourth suspect, is free on bail.

Candy Y. Carson was granted a divorce from Dennis W. Carson Thursday and her maiden name of Candy Yvonne Shull restored.

Effects Of Strike Are Negligible

Mrs. Jimmie Jones, 612 West Fifth, an employee at Continental Trailways Bus Depot, which acts as an agent for the Sedalia office of Western Union Telegraph Co., during non-office hours, said that the nation-wide strike by the United Telegraph Workers, AFL-CIO, against Western Union has had negligible effects here.

"People know about the strike and have not been trying to send telegrams," Mrs. Jones said. However, three to five persons in the area have attempted to send telegraph money orders. Normally, the telegraph company transmits an average of five money orders during evening hours.

There have been no attempts, Mrs. Jones said, to send money orders to the Sedalia office.

The strike, which began Monday, affects an estimated 17,000 Western Union workers. The union is demanding a two-year contract including 16 percent in wage hikes each year. Employees now earn $3.47 an hour.

and if the employee did not like it he could find work somewhere else. This was also denied.

Melvin Heimsoth, president of Borchers and Heimsoth Construction Co., Cole Camp, was the only witness called to testify for Letourneau. He said he had been elected president of the SBA at a meeting which he never attended. Heimsoth said he learned of his election from Temple.

He said he never attended any meetings with union representatives and emphasized he had met Letourneau only "within the last two weeks."

A last-minute attempt by Letourneau's attorney to have the case dismissed on the grounds that more than six months had elapsed since the alleged infractions occurred was overruled.

Texas Company Is Low River Bidder

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Markham and Brown Inc. of Dallas, Tex., was apparent low bidder at $706,036 for construction of dikes and repair of channel stabilization along 63 miles of the Missouri River.

Central point for the construction, which the government estimated at $694,010, is near Atchison, Kan.

The opening by the Army Corps of Engineers Wednesday was one of eight to take place this month for such work between Rulp, Neb., to the mouth of the river near St. Louis.

A 450-ton gantry crane will be delivered to a Bremen, West Germany shipyard in 1972. It was designed and built in Finland.

Kennedy Aides Coined

WASHINGTON (AP) — Long-time Kennedy political aides are involved in the campaigns of nearly every Democratic presidential possibility, convinced that Sen. Edward M. Kennedy means it when he says he doesn't want to be a candidate next year.

Two top figures in Sen. George S. McGovern's presidential campaign worked for Sen. Robert F. Kennedy in 1968. So did Sen. Edmund S. Muskie's national political director.

The head of Sen. Harold E. Hughes' fledgling political organization is a veteran of President John F. Kennedy's 1960 campaign, as is the Southern regional coordinator for Sen. Birch E. Bayh.

The political woods are so full of other former Kennedy aides who are starting to choose up sides in belief Edward M. Kennedy means his repeated statements he won't seek the Democratic nomination in 1972.

"It is interesting that the people who know Teddy the best tend to believe him the most," said Frank Mankiewicz of the Massachusetts' senator's statements.

Mankiewicz, who just joined McGovern's campaign as a policy adviser, was Robert F. Kennedy's press secretary in 1968 and since has been a syndicated columnist.

McGovern's campaign manager, Gary Hart, worked in Colorado in 1968 for the late New York senator.

Pierre Salinger, who will work for McGovern in next spring's primaries, was John Kennedy's press secretary.

Both Mankiewicz and Salinger worked for the South Dakota senator after Robert F. Kennedy's death; both probably would have been for McGovern in 1972 even if Edward Kennedy, heir to his slain brothers' political fortunes, had become a candidate.

The Muskie campaign also has Kennedyites, starting with John F. English. Active in both the 1960 and 1968 Kennedy campaigns, English recently became Muskie's national political director.

His assistant, Barbara Coleman, worked for the two Kennedy's and on Salinger's staff in the White House.

Esther Newburge, one of Robert Kennedy's "Boiler room" aides in the group that also included Mary Jo Kopechne, is joining Muskie's operation as New York political coordinator after a stint with Rep. Bela Abzug, D-N. Y.

Miss Kopechne drowned when a car driven by Edward Kennedy plunged off a Massachusetts bridge in 1969.

In California, Muskie is receiving help from National Committee man Stephen Reinhardt, a 1968 Robert Kennedy supporter, and Paul Zifren, who played a role in John Kennedy's 1969 campaign.

Richard Goodwin, in the past active for both John F. Kennedy and Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, helped Muskie with his 1970 election eve televised reply to President Nixon.

The head of the Hughes campaign is attorney Edward McDermott, an Iowan who worked for President Kennedy in 1960 and later became his director of the Office of Emergency Planning. John Reilly, who was in Robert Kennedy's Justice Department and later on the Federal Trade Commission, is also for Hughes.

The Bayh campaign has several former Kennedy associates, too.

Clarence Martin, the Indiana senator's Southern coordinator, helped organize the 1969 Kennedy campaign in Louisiana. In 1968, he worked for Hubert H. Humphrey.

Bob Burke, a California lawyer who worked for Robert Kennedy in 1968, is Bayh's Northeast coordinator.

The lines even extend to the outer fringes of possible Democratic candidates.
